Marvel Comics cancels the X-Men

Above: The Dark Design is Marvel's follow-up to its best-selling bookshelf comic ever, Ghost Rider/ Wolverine/Punisher: Hearts of Darkness*. Howard Mackie, writer of the original title, takes the three heroes back to the town of Christ's Crown for a confrontation with Mephisto and his offspring, Blackheart. The 64-page $6.95 oneshot features art by former* Ghost Rider penciller Ron Garney and X-Factor inker Al Milgrom. The Dark Design ships to the UK on December 13th.

IN AN aggressive new marketing move, Marvel Comics is cancelling its entire top-selling line of X-Men comics for four months, and replacing them with nine new titles.

From the poor-selling and subsequently cancelled 1960s X-Men title, Marvel creators of the 1980s revitalised the concept of mutant heroes hated and feared by society. Over the last four years, Marvel's X-titles have continued to grow in sales and in number until reaching their current position where the nine comics have a larger share of the market than any other company's entire line excluding Marvel's main competitor, Time-Warner's DC Comics.

But despite seven of the company's X-Men titles appearing consistently in America's Top 20 selling comics, the aftermath of the 1993 speculator boom has seen the market dwindle to almost half of last year's size. While the X-books remain market leaders, Marvel is now making a dramatic move in an attempt to raise sales to earlier levels, and to provide a perfect jumping-on point for new readers, possibly deterred by the complexities of the X-Men history.

To achieve this, for a four month period the entire line is being replaced by new titles with the more enticing issue numbers #1-4.

Defalco quits Marvel? . 68

In addition, a bookend two-parter X-Men: Alpha and X-Men: Beta is being produced, introducing and resolving the Age of Apocalyse storyline which sees the rewriting of the history of the characters as their mentor, Charles Xavier, is killed years before forming his first X-team.

Marvel's all different X-Men

AFTER more than 15 years as America's top selling comics line, Marvel's X-Men family is being dramatically altered for a major new story arc.

Beginning in the December 13 shipping X-Men Alpha #1, Marvel's mutant history is drastically reworked in a new retroactive storyline. Rewriting history, it has the X-Men founder Professor Charles Xavier killed, attempting to prevent his son from murdering his then good friend Magneto, a full 20 years before he was destined to form the first X-Men team.

To highlight this, for a four-month period Marvel is changing the actual cover titles of all its mutant comics for the duration of the After Xavier: The Age of Apocalypse story arc.

● X-Men becomes The Mutants: The Amazing X-Men #1, featuring the lineup of Quicksilver, Banshee, Storm, Iceman, Dazzler and Exodus.

Fabien Nicieza and Andy Kubert will continue from The X-Men as creative team.

● Uncanny X-Men becomes The Mutants: The Astonishing X-Men #1, featuring Magneto, Rogue, Sabretooth, Wildchild, Sunfire, Morph (or Changeling) and Blink.

The creative team will be Scott Lobdell and Roger Cruz.

The story running through these two sister titles focuses on one of the X-Men's greatest foes, the time-spanning Apocalypse (see new-look visual above right) who has taken control of America and is now set on world domination. Only Magneto and his two teams of renegade mutants stand in the villain's way.

● X-Force is not, as reported, becoming X-Posse. It is now being retitled Gambit and the X-Ternals #1, which features the Cajun X-Man and his team of Lila Cheney, Strong Guy, Sunspot and Jubilee attempting the most daring jewel heist in history as they try to steal the legendary M'Kraan Crystal — a Shi'Ar monument with reality altering powers.

Fabien Nicieza, Tony Daniel and Kevin Conrad are the creative team.

● Wolverine becomes Weapon X #1 featuring Logan and Jean Grey as the most lethal mutant pairing on the planet discovering that the Human High Council has decreed all mutants must be exterminated.

Larry Hama and Adam Kubert continue as the writer-artist team from Wolverine.

● X-Factor becomes Factor X and features the large team of Cyclops, Havok, Polaris, Beast, Cannonball, Northstar, Aurora, Wolfsbane, Feral, Scarlett, Thorn and the Bedlam Brothers.

This book deals with the deteriorating relationship between the Summers boys (Havok and Cyclops) as their father, Mr Sinister, is suspected of being one of Apocalypse's victims.

Factor X is produced by the new X-Factor creative team of John Francis Moore and Steve (Avengers) Epting.

● Excalibur is being renamed X-Calibre and features the team of Nightcrawler, Angel, Mystique, Doug Ramsey, Dani Moonstar and Deadpool. Responding to Magneto's wishes, Nightcrawler and his mother (Mystique) go in search of Destiny, a woman who may hold the key to this altered present day universe.

Warren Ellis and Ken Lashley continue as creators from Excalibur.

● Generation X is becoming Generation Next and features Colossus and his wife Kitty Pryde as the teachers of new mutants Chamber, Husk, Sync, M, Skin and Penance. This team goes in search of Colossus's sister Illyana, who - their mentor Magneto believes - may hold the secret behind this altered future, but was last seen in the slave pits of Apocalypse.

Scott Lobdell and Chris Bachalo continue as the creative team from Generation X.

● Cable becomes X-Man and tells the story of orphan Nathan Christoper who escapes the slave pits of Apocalypse and begins fighting covertly for Magneto.

Cable series author Jeph Loeb continues on this title and is joined by the British artist of the recent Deadpool II mini-series, Ian Churchill.

● X-Men Unlimited becomes X-Men Chronicles and is the lynch-pin of the story arc. It spotlights Magneto forming the X-Men after his old friend Charles Xavier is murdered and has his suspicions build that this world isn't what it should be.

The After Xavier: The Age of Apocalypse story ends with the April 28 shipping $3.95 X-Men: Beta #1.

Comics International is a monthly industry newspaper devoted to the comics medium. As such, it provides details of forthcoming UK and US comics and related items, together with reviews and commentary on current titles.

Certain products mentioned are not available through regular news agent outlets, but only from the 'direct sale' comics specialist retailers and mail order companies. Details of specialist outlets are advertised throughout the magazine, and a listing of the major specialists in Britain is given in our Retail Index and Mail Order Index sections.

Shipping dates mentioned for North American titles are the dates copies leave their printers to be air-freighted to distributors for direct sale outlets approximately one week later. These dates and titles do not relate to on-sale dates or titles for news agent copies.

The Marvel and DC titles on newstrade distribution are on sale in the UK approximately two to three months after the air-freighted copies can be bought through specialist shops and mail order companies dealing with 'advance imports'. Because of the additional shipping costs incurred, these advance copies are sold at a higher price than the UK cover price.

American dollar prices are listed for US titles with most UK comic shops converting at the rate of 80p = $1.

Most reputable mail order dealers bear a CoBRA seal on their advertisements. For full details concerning advertisers displaying this Mail Order Protection seal, see page 126

Angela: Spawn Hunter by Gaiman and Capullo

TODD McFarlane has recruited Neil Gaiman to write an Angela mini-series, as yet of undetermined length, following on directly from the events in the Gaiman-written Spawn #9 featuring the angelic heroine trapped on a tundra planet against a horde of beings just like herself. To survive, Angela enlists the aid of Spawn, the man she's sworn to hunt down, if she is to overcome this battle.

Featuring artwork by Greg Capullo and Mark Pennington, the first issue ships from Image in January and retails for $2.25.

Capullo also assists Todd McFarlane on art for Spawn #27.

Dark Horse adds Otomo and Shirow manga

DARK Horse comics has declared that March 1995 will be another of the company's annual Manga Months, the third year that the Oregon-based company has chosen March as a focus month for new and unseen manga projects.

Three new mini-series will start featuring work by some Japan's best-known creators.

● Domu is written and illustrated by Katsuhiro (Akira) Otomo and tells of an old man with psychic abilities and his battle against a young girl with similar powers.

● The Ghost in the Shell is a new sf mini-series by the critically acclaimed creator of Appleseed, Masamune Shirow.

The six-issue series follows the exploits of Major Kusangi and her covert police team as they battle to stop cyber-terrorism and battle suits running rampage (visual left).

● Spirit of Wonder is the working title for a three-issue mini-series by writer/artist Kenji Tsuruta telling the adventures of a mysterious innkeeper and the clients who use her establishment.

All three series begin in March and are expected to retail for $2.95.

● Outlanders Volume 4 is a March shipping collection of issues 13 to 16 of Johji Manabe's epic SF love story.

● 3x3 Eyes trade paperback collects Yuzo Takada's five issue series, originally published by Innovation. The collection sets the scene for a possible Dark Horse series later in the year.

IN BRIEF

Wagner's Aliens

JUDGE Dredd co-creator John Wagner is to write a new four-issue Aliens mini-series for Dark Horse.

Aliens: Berserker tells of a team of alien hunters who crash land in the middle of an alien hive.

The art is pencilled by newcomer Paul Mendoza and inked by Dark Horse regular Andy Mushynsky.

The first issue ships on 24th January and retails for $2.50.

Lightning strikes

BRICK City is the location for a new series from DC Comics featuring former Outsiders team member Black Lightning.

Written by character creator Tony Isabella, the black superhero with the power to control electricity has been set to return to his own series for over three years, but had been continually set back by publishers DC Comics.

The first issue will ship on December 20th, priced $1.95.

Art is by Eddy Newell and Ron McCain and the intention is for it to be totally different to the original 1977 11 issue series, this time highlighting the grim world of ghetto life, drug dealing and gang warfare.

Vertigo cards

SKYBOX and DC have announced a new elongated card series based on DC's Vertigo imprint.

The cards will include art from regular Vertigo titles such as Swamp Thing, Hellblazer, Shade and Animal Man and will ship in January.

Above: Alex (Marvels) Ross's art for the latest in his Marvel Press series. This special $15.95 59" wide poster ships on December 6th.

Liefeld unveils Maximum Press

MAXIMUM Press is a new imprint from Rob Liefeld's Extreme Studios designed to publish comics and graphic novels outside of the superhero genre.

The first project from the imprint will be Rob Liefeld's Warchild, a six-issue SF/sword and sorcery tale featuring a boy named Sword and his cyborg ally, Stone.

"This is a a story I've been wanting to do since I began my career in comics," said Liefeld who has recruited Team Youngblood's Chap Yaep to pencil his story.

Set for shipping in December, the first of the six issue 32 page Warchild series will be written by Rob Liefeld with Eric Stephenson and will retail for $2.50.

Xenozoic Tales returns in 1995

MARK Schultz is bringing back his critically acclaimed Xenozoic Tales with issue 13 shipping in January.

Published by Kitchen Sink, this is Schultz's first new story since 1990.

The first six issues of the series were reprinted in colour by Marvel's Epic Comics as Cadillacs & Dinosaurs in 1991 and the concept has since been used in a successful children's animated series under the same name. A licensed comic from Topps also continues.

The new story arc starting in #13 finds Jack "Cadillac" Tenrec falling foul of a local tribe's greatest hunter, Lord Balclutha. When Jack's partner, Hannah Dundee, joins the pair on a hunting expidition, the hunter takes a romantic interest in her but Tenrec, also attracted to Dundee, objects.

Boiling Point, an eight-page back-up strip by Steve Stiles also appears in Xenozoic Tales #13 which ships in January, priced $2.95.

Tying in with the relaunch, Kitchen Sink is currently offering an extensive back catalogue of Xenozoic Tales material including signed and numbered editions, serigraphs and trade paperbacks.

Primeval and Necromantra in Malibu's new Godwheel mini

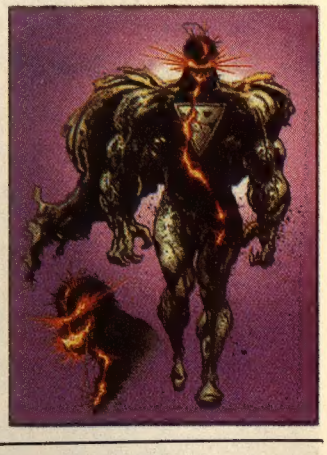
MALIBU Comics has announced a special stand-alone series starting in January featuring five popular Ultraverse characters in a five-issue mini that will be outside of the regular Ultraverse continuity.

Godwheel is written by a team of Malibu regulars: Mike Barr, James Hudnall, Gerard Jones, Chris Ulm and Dan Danko. Art is supplied by Mark (Doom's IV) Pacella, Scott (Hardcase) Benefiel, John (GI Joe) Statema, Aaron (Sludge) Lopresti, Jason (Mantra) Armstrong and Scott (Freex) Kolins.

The story takes characters from Rune, Freex, Hardcase, Mantra and Warstrike, plunging them into a huge spiralling collection of worlds known as The Godwheel, designed and engineered for the Ultraverse by SF writer Larry Niven.

The series is specially designed so readers unfamiliar with the Ultraverse can be introduced to its characters and read a story with no complex continuity links.

Joining key villains Necromantra and Sludge's Lord Pumpkin will be the new villain Primeval.



Stevens concludes Rocketeer

DURING the early 1980s, former Russ Manning assistant Dave Stevens developed a 1930s adventure hero called The Rocketeer. After a cult success as a comic book - first appearing in October 1982 in Pacific Comics Presents - and an ill-fated feature film adaptation by Disney, the comic series is now set to conclude with Dark Horse Comics.

The success of The Rocketeer is responsible not only for Stevens' status as one of the most sought-after comic artists since Frank Frazetta, but also for a revival in popularity for 1950s pin-up model Betty Page, who was the basis for The Rocketeer's girlfriend in the series.

The Rocketeer Adventure Magazine #3 is the final part of a story Stevens started over 14 years ago and the first Rocketeer comic produced by Stevens in five years, as the Rocketeer movie adaptation was by drawn by Russ Heath.

Priced $2.95, The Rocketeer Adventure Magazine #3 features a painted cover by Stevens and Paul (Concrete) Chadwick and ships on January 31st, 1995.

Azrael gains own monthly title

DC COMICS's latest addition to its ever-growing family of Batman titles is the ongoing Azrael series which follows on directly from the KnightsEnd saga.

Written by Batman group editor Dennis O'Neil, with art by Adventures of Superman's Barry Kitson and Batman/Punisher: Lake of Fire's James Pascoe, this new series follows the one-time Batman replacement, Jean Paul Valley, as he searches for a purpose in life after the events which led him to give up the mantle of "the new Batman". He soon discovers that Azrael is needed and sets about reinventing himself.

The first issue ships on December 20th and retails for $1.95.

Major changes are also taking place in the existing Batman comics as a new costume, a new storyline and the return of a familiar figure all lead into DC's first major Batman story of 1995.

Since the conclusion of Zero Hour, the mantle of Batman has been held by the former-Robin, Dick Grayson, but this will all change in December when Bruce Wayne returns to the role of the Dark Knight and brings a darker, grittier look to the Batman, as well as a new look to his costume.

Batman: Red Rain artists Kelley (Deadman) Jones and John (Ms. Tree) Beatty will be joining series writer Doug Moench on Batman, while Barry Kitson and James Pascoe - the new artists for the Azrael series - will join Alan Grant to produce Shadow of the Bat.

Graham Nolan and Scott Hanna continue to illustrate Detective Comics with writer Chuck Dixon. In addition, Superboy artist Tom Grummett returns to regular pencilling duties on Robin as the "return of Bruce Wayne as Batman" storyline runs through all four of these above titles.

All the titles shipping between December 13th and January 3rd will come in two versions. Their standard $1.50 or $1.95 (Shadow of the Bat) edition and cover-enhanced versions retailing at $2.50 and $2.95 for Shadow of the Bat.

Also scheduled is a special Christmas oneshot, The Batman Adventures Holiday Special which is a collection of new stories with a seasonal flavour. A 64 page standard format comic, it ships on December 6th and retails for $2.95.

Fleer's Ultra X-Men 1995

FLEER's new Ultra X-Men 1995 series will ship in December. The set consists of 150 cards with gold or holographic foil stamping.

The series will also include three subsets: X-Overs, Spring Break and Greatest Battles featuring artwork from the Brothers Hildebrandt and Luis Royo.

Other artists have contributed to the series and these include Glenn Fabry, Boris Vallejo, Julie Bell, John Romita Sr and Nelson.

Fleer is also releasing ten Ultraprints, special 6½ by 10" cards, on January 1st. The characters depicted include: Bishop by Boris Vallejo, Gambit by Bob Larkin and Jean Grey by Julie Bell.

IN BRIEF

Quick and the dead

ONE of the few characters who crosses over from the DC Universe to the Vertigo Universe is to team-up with DC's most popular alien bastiche in a new one-shot special.

Lobo/Deadman: The Brave and the Bald is the first meeting between the ferocious bounty hunter and the unstable spirit of former carnival trapeze artist Boston Brand also known as Deadman.

Lobo is offered the contract of killing Deadman and goes to Apokolips to retrieve a weapon that can capture and kill ghosts.

This $3.50 January 10 shipping 48 page oneshot is written by Lobo regular Alan Grant and painted by Martin (LoboCop) Emond.

Spidey death

SPOILER WARNING: A major supporting character from the Spider-Man family of titles is to die in December's Spectacular Spider-Man #221, Dr Octopus.

This event leads into the three-issue mini-series dealing with the consequences in Spider-Man: Funeral For An Octopus written by Tom Brevoort and Mike Kanterovich, with art from Yorkshireman Stewart Johnson.

The series begins shipping on January 24th and retails for $1.95.

Ellison's dreams

DARK Horse has collaborated with an award-winning science fiction writer for a new anthology comic.

Harlan Ellison's Dream Corridor Special features adaptations selected from over 1700 Eliison short stories and 60 books.

The 48 page squarebound special features contributions from Len (X-Men) Wein, Pat (Doom 2099) Broderick, Faye (Vampire Lestat) Perozich, western illustrator Doug Wildey, Mr Monster's Michael T. Gilbert, Matt (Savage Henry) Howarth and Eric (Oz) Shanower who illustrates the Ellison written framing sequence.

Harlan Ellison's Dream Corridor Special retails for $4.95 and ships on January 31st.

New Richie Rich title

TO COINCIDE with the release of the feature film Richie Rich, Marvel is publishing a 48 page comic adaptation of the $40 million budget film which stars Macauley Culkin.

By Angelo DeCesare and Ernie Colon, it tells the story of the richest kid in the world, and his struggle with the villainous Laurence Van Dough, who is out to destroy the Rich family and steal their empire.

Richie Rich first appeared in 1953 as a Harvey character and his popularity was such that at one time there were over 30 different regular Richie Rich comics.

Richie Rich is a 48 page $2.95 oneshot shipping on December 13th.

Bond is back

JAMES Bond 007: The Quasimodo Gambit is a new three-issue mini-series from Dark Horse by Black Panther's Don McGregor and Gary Caldwell.

The story pits the British secret agent against Earth's most dangerous mercenary, Maximillion "Quasimodo" Steele.

Each issue is in a 48 page saddle-stitched format and retails for $3.95.

The first issue ships to the UK on February 7th.

Unseen Frazetta

A PREVIOUSLY unpublished Frank Frazetta painting will feature as the cover to Penthouse Comix #4.

The issue also includes an interview with the renowned fantasy artist and an overview of his art exhibition in New York City.

Artist change

FORMER Legion of Super-Heroes artist Stuart Immonen is replacing Barry Kitson on Adventures of Superman from #520.

Cancellations

MARVEL has announced cancellation of the following titles: Blackwulf (with #10), Secret Defenders (#25), Silver Sable (#35) and Nightwatch (#12).

Sagendorf dies

BUD SAGENDORF has died aged 79. He replaced E.C. Segar as artist on the Popeye comic and newspaper strip and drew it until 1986.

Sagendorf also illustrated children's books and drew a short-lived railroading strip in the 1950s. He leaves a wife and three children.

New recruit

LEE Nordling has been named as DC's new group editor for creative services. He will be responsible for creative efforts outside of comics themselves and will instigate new talent development programs as well as taking on other support programs and coordinating with editorial departments.

Nordling's background is as a writer, story editor and art designer and he worked as a writer for Disney prior to joining DC.

BattleTech comics

MALIBU Comics has signed a deal to produce a series of comics based on the BattleTech games created by FASA and the BattleTech show in San Diego, California. The first monthly series is BattleTech: Fallout, written by Roland Mann and drawn by Tim Eldred.

The comics will directly tie-in to the games and any add-ons for the games will incorporate the comic book. The first issue retails for $2.95 and ships in December.

Byrne off Next Men

JOHN Byrne is taking a indeterminate break from his John Byrne's Next Men series to concentrate on other work.

He said the series would resume sometime in 1995 with the next four-issue story arc, War, which leaves the Next Men in a world they never imagined existed as they come face to face with dinosaurs.

The Walsall-born writer/artist has also unveiled his latest creations, The Prototykes, as a back-up strip in his current Babe comic book. He describes them as "my version of the popular Marvel kids comic, Power Pack".

Byrne is currently working on an Elseworlds Superman graphic novel and a Galactus/Darkseid crossover for Marvel and DC.

Bumming around

JUDGE Dredd co-creators Carlos Ezquerra and John Wagner have teamed up with fellow Dredd chronicler Alan Grant for a new four-issue DC mini-series called Bob, the Galactic Bum.

An interstellar tramp, Bob's a down-and-out philosopher eking out an existence across the universe with his partner, Buck Fifty.

In the duo's first adventure they run into the war-crazed aliens The Khund, who are mixed up in a battle with Lobo and the REBELS team. The first issue ships January 3rd, and retails for $1.95.

IN BRIEF

Softcover Shazam

DC is releasing a softcover version of Jerry Ordway's The Power of Shazam! graphic novel.

The 96 page book acts as a starting point for the new Power of Shazam ongoing monthly title also by Jerry Ordway, which is due to launch in March. The graphic novel recounts an updated origin of the Golden Age Captain Marvel character and his first adventure.

This softcover retails for $9.95 and ships on December 6th.

Prime SEGA game

MALIBU has announced the release of a Prime video game on Sega CD.

Developed by the UK-based Malibu Interactive — the video game division of Malibu Comics — the Prime game consists of three acts, each made up of five scenarios.

The Prime video game was developed directly from the storylines of the Ultraverse title written by Gerard Jones and Len Strazewski.

Ian McGee, Malibu Interactive's manager of UK operations said, "Working with Len and Gerard has allowed us to build surprises into the game, some of the plot twists we've incorporated are really wild!"

The game comes complete with a 16 page Prime comic book but details of a British release for the game have yet to be determined.

Christmask presents

ECCENTRIC comics creator Rick Geary is the man behind a new Christmas special featuring Dark Horse's box-office smash The Mask.

It tells the whimsical tale of a boy who discovers the Mask and uses it to make sure he and his friends have a good Christmas.

The Night Before Christ*Mask* is a 32 page hardcover graphic novel, with 16 pages in full colour. Priced $9.95, it ships on November 29th.

Publishing casualties

ATTIC Books, the American publishers of Comics Values Monthly and Triton, suspended all its operations on August 15th according to the company's Vice President, Rod Malloy.

This has been blamed on "problems with the printer" but is also believed to be due to the poor sales of the newly released card magazine Triton. This has resulted in a number of members of staff including British editor Steve Thomas and news editor Neil Hansen being layed off, only two months before Comic Values Monthly reached its 100th issue.

Malloy said, "We are restructuring and, probably, bringing in some outside investors. We hope that, if we come back, we'll still have some of the people who were working for us waiting in the wings to pick up where we left off."

Both Triumphant Comics (publishers of Chromium Man, Riot Gear, etc.) and Lightning (publishers of Perg and War Party) have ceased publishing.

Triumphant has been unobtainable for any comment, while Lightning has said that it is suspending publications until the market settles down and can handle another superhero universe.

It is also believed that Dagger Comics has also ceased publishing comics due to poor sales figures.

Shadow bust

GRAPHITTI Designs has reset the release date for the limited edition The Shadow cold-cast bust to January. The $145 collectable had been planned to ship in June but many designs by Randy Bowen and Mike Kaluta were lost.

RUSTY STAPLES SAYS THANK YOU TO EVERYONE WHO ATTENDED

A big thank you to all the creators, dealers, panel and event hosts, publishers and attendees who made the 1994 UK Comic Art Convention such a success.

The convention auction raised over £3,800, which we'll be passing to the Jack Kirby Educational Fund, and a further £1,400 was raised for the London Cartoon Centre. Thanks are due to all artists who contributed artwork to our booklet and auction, and everyone who donated an item for the Cartoon Centre raffle.

The convention ran relatively smoothly, but as usual, if you have any complaints, constructive criticisms or suggestions write to us at Rusty Staples, PO Box 146, Glasgow G1 5RN. The one exception is regading publisher presence at UKCAC. We apologise, but have no say in which companies choose to attend the convention, and if you were disappointed by the abscence of a publisher, we suggest you write to them directly.

We have a limited amount of previous convention booklets available. Quantities are as follows:

UKCAC87	Jim Baikie cover	9 copies
UKCAC89	John Bolton cover	11 copies
UKCAC90	Garry Leach cover	3 copies
UKCAC91	Simon Bisley cover	3 copies
UKCAC93	Dave Gibbons cover	5 copies
UKCAC94	Glenn Fabry cover	40 copies
Glasgow CAC90	Ian Gibson cover	2 copies
Glasgow CAC91	Colin MacNeil cover	6 copies
Glasgow CAC92	Jamie Hewlett cover	9 copies
Glasgow CAC94	Mark Buckingham cover	(A5) 8 copies

If you'd like one send a cheque for £2 per booklet made payable to Rustic Stables (not Rusty Staples) and an A4 sized envelope with 62p in stamps, and 20p per booklet thereafter. All applications must be received by Monday November 7th, money will be passed on to the Jack Kirby Educational Fund, and the booklets are only available while stocks last.

We would like to publicly thank all our convention staff, who contributed more than people can ever imagine to the smooth running of UKCAC

Thank you also to everyone to entered the Costume Parade. A great set of costumes as usual. Many thanks to Fiona Jerome, Peter Hayward-Brewer, Jenni Cole, Susannah Drazin, Martin Hand, Rob Rundle, John Swindell and Seigi Longman. Congrats to the worthy winner, the Silver Cullender.

Apologies that we didn't get to hand out as many prizes as we would have liked, but things got a bit hectic towards the end - and wasn't the crowd restless this year?

Could Terry Smith please contact us to learn something to his advantage

MAJOR DIGRESSIONS

Enter the new (still savage) dragon!

Peter David, writer of comics, paperbacks, film scripts and stuff, contributes a weekly column, "But I Digress" to US trade paper The Comic Buyer's Guide*. In addition to appearing monthly in* Comics International*, his columns have been compiled by Krause Publications into a 258 page paperback, now available in all good comic shops.*

IT HAS been several years since "Name Withheld" announced anonymously in the Comics Buyer's Guide's letter column that writers had outlived their usefulness in comics and that artists no longer had need of them and then scuttled away into darkness.

In more recent times, the artist behind said letter has been a bit more forthcoming about his authorship (although he has yet, as far as I know, to explain his cowardice in the matter). I don't mention him by name, because lately he's been working overtime to provoke me into giving him publicity — apparently on the assumption that McFarlane was able to, so, therefore, he should be entitled, too.

I only mention him in order to set the stage for the advent of a soul mate. This newcomer is John Kricfalusi, best known as the (eventually cast-out) creator of Ren & Stimpy: characters who, at the time, seemed about as coarse and grotesque as animated characters could be until more recent efforts on MTV, for example, make early Ren & Stimpy seem restrained in comparison.

Kricfalusi is a perfectly pleasant, creative person otherwise, but has his nose out of joint with writers — specifically writers who don't draw. He has been assailing the animation industry for some time now making flat assertions that anyone in animation who is employed solely as a writer is, by definition, no talent, because no one who writes well would bother with animation. This is his opinion, of course, to which he is entitled. It's inane, sweepingly and impossibly generalised, and ignores the rewards and critical acclaim heaped on the work of non-animators who write. But it's his.

I wrote to his usual haunt, Animation Magazine, about his off-beat opinions. The letter was run, which was something of a mixed blessing, since it was cut for length by the simple expedient of knocking out every other paragraph. As a result the letter makes little to no sense. I thought about writing an angry, acerbic, and critical follow-up to the magazine, taking it to task for this blatant censorship, but that seemed kind of asinine. I also thought of running the full letter here but figured no one would care.

However, Kricfalusi has now wandered out of the animation field into the realm of comics, pushing a line of characters that he's developing for Marvel. In an interview in Hero Illustrated #15, he talks about his upcoming romp in our little pastures — and, at the same time, displays not only the same contempt for writers (lifted right out of his animation opinions), but a general disdain for comics as a whole. Indeed, one must wonder about the type of perseon Kricfalusi is: if he holds the genre in such disregard, why is he deigning to lower himself to our level? Could it be that — oh, I dunno — the animation field is sick of him? Just a guess.

Here are some of Kricfalusi's opinions on the subject of comics writers. Hey, at least he signed his name to them:

What I'm saying is neither (comics nor animation) attracts good writers, unless they're artists who happen to be writers. The best writers of any medium have to understand the medium. A composer has to be a musician. If you can't read a note of music or play a musical instrument, you're not going to write a symphony, but in animated cartoons — and in many comic books — that is the case. The people who can't draw, who can't read and write drawings in the same sense of reading and writing music, are writing the drawings which is ridiculous.

It is theoretically possible that you could have a good writer who could assist the artist, much as you could have a lyricist work with a composer. The lyricist isn't writing the tunes and without a good tune it doesn't matter what the lyrics are. The thing is, it doesn't happen. It doesn't attract good writers. Good writers write novels. I mean that's all there is to it. I mean, why the hell would you want to write a comic book if you were a good writer? Are you really going to write about guys in long underwear running around beating the hell out of each other? What's the attraction to that? There's no writing in it! It's about vengeance. It's aboput vigilantism. It's about comic people. Where's the writing in it? I don't care who you are. Frank Miller... look at Frank Miller's movies. My God, they're embarrassing.

The interviewer says, "He's considered one of the top writers in comics," to which Kricfalusi responds, "Well, you know, it's like saying he's the top writer in bubble gum cards."

My my my.

The new kid on the comics block certainly knows just what to say, doesn't he?

Let's put aside for the moment that the most successful artists-who-write — the ideal creator as far as Kricfalusi is concerned — produced almost exclusively comics about vengeance-crazed vigilantes who dress up in long underwear and beat people up, which Kricfalusi speaks of contemptuously. Whereas the most successful writers-who-write produce atypical, unusual stories which advance the medium — which, one would think, Kricfalusi would embrace, since that's the opposite of the types of stories he spurns.

One of the most notable exceptions to the above generalisation is Frank Miller, with such unique visions as Sin City. One would think that Kricfalusi would single out Miller as the ideal of what a writer/artist should be; Miller, after all, represents all that is best in the industry. Yet Kricfalusi has nothing but opprobrium for Miller, as well. This doesn't come across as rational opinion so much as scattershot hostility. Apparently, Miller's body of work doesn't matter; Kricfalusi tears down Miller or, failing that, the medium in which Miller works.

Bubblegum cards.

To Kricfalusi, comic books are no more an art form than the pasteboard that we used to clip to bicycle spokes.

Hey, Neil Gaiman: box up that World Fantasy Award and ship it back. Kricfalusi says comics don't attract good writers.

Pack it in, Chris Claremont. Bet you're embarrassed about wasting two decades of your life, huh?

Harlan Ellison: away with you. How dare you, who have written for Marvel, DC, Dark Horse, and Silver Moon — how dare you get involved in this pathetic little industry?

Kurt Busiek, no one really believed you had anything to do with Marvels' success, anyway. Take off.

Shuffle off, Steve Englehart. Hang down your head, Steve Gerber. Take a flying leap, Steve Grant. Go off, become Stevedores or something.

Marv Wolfman, J. M. DeMatteis, Stan Lee, Len Wein, Paul Dini, Roy Thomas, Mark Evanier, Louise Simonson, Jo Duffy, Roger Stern...

This is going to start looking like the end of Fiddler on the Roof. All the writers, chastened and put in their places by John Kricfalusi, heading off mournfully and singing Anatevka.

In the animation field, Kricfalusi's opinions on writers were simply unsupported. In comics, they're flatly contradicted by reality. Not that that will stop him, of course.

Still, out of a sense of trying to answer a newcomer's questions. I'll be happy to respond to his query of "Why the hell would you want to write comics, if you were a good writer?". I'm not blowing my own horn here; I'm using Kricfalusi's own definition, namely that good writers write novels. Well, I've had more than two dozen novels published, so by Kricfalusi's standards, I must be qualified to respond.

The answer is: because I like it. Because it's fun. Because writing is, in and of the collaborative medium that comic art presents. Because it's given me the opportunity to collaborate with (a) artists whose work I've long admired (John Romita Sr., John Buscema, Gene Colan), (b) artists who work I currently admire or with whom I'm friends (George Perez, Andy Kubert, Rick Leonardi), (c) artists who were up and coming or unknown, giving me the opportunity to help contribute to their popularity (Todd McFarlane, Dale Keown, Gary Frank).

Because I enjoyed comics as a kid and am excited to have the opportunity to contribute, not only to the art form, but to the grand mythos of a shared universe such as that which Marvel or DC has to offer.

And frankly, the money ain't bad.

None of those reasons disenfranchises or downgrades whatever abilities I, or anyone else who writes, may possess.

Kricfalusi's flat assertion that one must be able to draw in order to write comics is simply wrong.

Certainly, one must know music in order to compose a symphony, but even Kricfalusi allows that the metaphor falls apart the moment you factor in lyricists. You can write music without words: that's a tunes. You can writes verse without music: that's a poem. Put them together and you've got a song, but the existence of a song does not diminish tunes and poems.

The moment one tries to carry Kricfalusi's assertions through to any logical extension, they crumble.

Does a screenwriter have to know how to act, operate a camera, light a scene, direct a film, edit a film, perform ADR or Foley effects, or make popcorn in order to write a good screenplay?

Does an architect need to possess the ability to operate a bulldozer, walk fearlessly on a girder 20 stories up, or even hammer a nail, in order to design a building? Kricfalusi might claim that animating a scene is far more difficult than driving a nail. Fine. Any time or anywhere Kricfalusi is interested, I will gladly hit my thumb with the side of a #2 pencil, if Kricfalusi is willing to smash his thumb with a ball pen hammer. We'll see who comes out the worse.

Kricfalusi's opinions do not seem to come from information or empirical evidence, but rather, from ego. He can write and draw, while others can "only" write; therefore, anyone in the latter category is inferior. Doesn't matter if an "only" animation or comics writer can write rings around Kricfalusi; if you can't draw, you're nothing.

This is not a fact. If Kricfalusi is interested in fact, here's one for him: Motion Capture technology.

You may have seen it in action. Anyone notice those commercials that have automobiles dancing with petrol pumps? That's animation. No cels. No guys with pencils.

Computers. Computers plus actors with electronic devices strapped to their bodies. The devices record their moves and pump them directly into the hard drive, where their animated counterparts are electronically grafted on top of them. No pencil jockeys required, thank you very much. John Kricfalusi, shake hands with animators who can't draw — creative people who are able to think, conceptualise, and translate their ideas and creativity into seamless animation.

Because the thing that Kricfalusi and "Name Withheld" do not and did not understand is that the ability to visualise is not limited to those who can render with a pencil. They're of the opinion that artists have an inherent advantage. Wrong. People with imagination, talent, and creativity have an inherent advantage, and, as computer technology develops, the playing field of visual entertainment is becoming more and more level.

As it stands now — if one has no scruples — then one can produce a comic book with a dollop of drawing ability, aided by a comprehensive clip file and a light box.

Just a few years down the line, as computer technology becomes more and more sophisticated, the requirement for drawing ability will be eliminated. Storytelling — writing — will still be a reqirement, because people will always want and need stories. But drawing? Faugh. Clip files can be fed into scanners, artwork manipulated and tweaked so that it's no longer simple theft but, instead, a new creation.

For that matter, Motion Capture may well be modified into cheap "Stop" Motion Capture. All you'd need is the pattern for Spider-Man's costume and someone to body model it for you, and you'd have your wall-crawler.

The need for artists who can "only" draw will dimish.

Think that opinion is based on a writer's ego, as Kricfalusi's is based on his own self-aggrandisement? Groundless supposition, perhaps?

Let's have a quick history lesson.

Let's say you're a family from more than a century ago. You want a portrait done: a nice visual rendering of Mom, Dad, and the kids.

It's probably not within your means to do so. You're out of luck.

Let's say you're a rich family. Then you are in a position to hire a portrait painter. It's an indulgence, of course, but so what? And a man will come in, and the entire family will stand motionless for hours, while carefully, meticulously, a visual representation of your family is created through the only means available at the time. And the portrait painter may very well be smug in his job security, in his ability, and in his superiority over those who cannot paint.

Flash forward to modern times.

Want a visual representation of your family?

Well, let's see. You can use a 110 Instamatic. Or a Polaroid. Or one of those disposable jobbies. You can mount a 35 millimeter on a tripod, if you're ambitious. If you've got a little money and some free time, you can bop over to Sears Department store, take a number, and wait.

Hire an artist? Be saddled with the limitations that such an undertaking has to offer? An artist? you can't be serious.

Mr Artist... meet Eastman Kodak.

The advent of the camera is exactly analogous to the advent of computers. It made the art of creating pictures easily accessible to people who could not, in a million years, paint. It enabled generations of people to look disdainfully at portrait painters and say, "Artists, we don't want you; we don't need you."

Will your Kodak Funsaver 35 produce a visual work on a par with the Mona Lisa? No. That's not the point. The point is it doesn't have to. Artists can, and do, continue to express themselves. But they no longer have an exclusive on providing pictorial pieces of history.

And, with computers, artists' monopoly on animation and comics will, likewise, evaporate. I firmly agree with artists who say that visualisation is the most important aspect of comics. I think it's self-evident that excellent art can elevate a mediocre story, whereas a superb story can be made unreadable by lousy art.

But if artists such as Kricfalusi think that they are the be-all and end-all of drawing ability by one segment of the working populace means that that segment is inherently inept, untalented, or inferior — then such artists are kidding themselves.

If the notion of art on computers remains unthinkable to you, I presume that, 10 years ago, the concept of lettering and colouring on computers would have, likewise, seemed absurd. Here's news: it's no longer absurd; it's routine.

History and progress say that artists do not have a lock on their "elevated" position in the hierachy of visual entertainment. Not by any means.

Kricfalusi's claim that all writers of comics and animation are, by definition, bad doesn't conjure up thoughts of informed, thoughtful discussion. Rather, it evokes the indignant screams of a prehistoric creature, caught in the tar pit of technology and being dragged down without quite understanding what's happening.

In summation, all that's left to say to comics newcomer John Kricfalusi is:

Glub.
Glub.
Glub.

© Peter David, 1994

(Peter David, writer of stuff, is further amused by the individual who is so desperate to draw attention to his new comic book that he plastered David's name (along with John Byrne's) onto his advertising campaign, though neither is connected in any way with the title. Kind of like the old school trick of putting up a poster that reads "Sex" in huge letters, followed — in tiny wording — by "Now that we've got your attention, there's a meeting of the Student Union. Kind of sad that said individual had so little confidence in the ability of his own name to sell the series that he felt the need to withhold his name until the end of the ad. But, hey, at least he's consistent.)

Retail industry: major changes

THE LAST month has probably been the most hectic ever in the specialist comics retail market.

Forbidden Planet, with additions in Liverpool and Coventry, now has 13 shops, while the Fantastic Store chain has been split up. Ex-Fantastic Store managers took over four of the six branches, with Birmingham and Denmark Street London being renamed Asylum, Brighton becoming Fantastic Store Ink and Portobello Road London retaining its original name. Nottingham managers Stephen Holland and Mark Simpson have retained their old customers for their new Page 45 shop, while Paul Coppin, owner of the original chain, retains only his Mildenhall branch.

But all this, together with west country activity including Wonderworld acquiring Comics & CDs in Bristol and Floppy Tongue closing the Bath shop recently taken over from 451 Comics, has been overshadowed by Stateside Comics PLC.

"We screwed up completely," admits director Paul Sassienie, over the sudden closure of all Stateside's Virgin branches and Hamley's Regent Street.

"Ultimately, we can't blame anbody else, we just expanded too quickly. It was a total disaster," Sassienie confessed. "I really believe that concessions don't work in comics retail. You lose control and have huge overheads."

Stateside's core business in Barnet, North London, had been working well enough to allow the company to expand into Virgin Marble Arch — ironically competing with Fantastic Store, who then had three Virgin branches. But the success led the three directors, Paul Sassienie, Martin Gold and Duncan McAlpine taking up offers of outside financing to expand further.

On professional advice that in four to eight years the company could be taken to the stock market, they made Stateside a public limited company with £50,000 fully paid-up share capital. But over the next two years, outside investment (£'m fully paid-up against £1m authorised share capital) made the principals minority shareholders (with only 16%) in their own company.

As outside re-investment failed to materialise when expected last month, the bank appointed receivers Stoy Hayward on Thursday, September 29th, 1994 with the three directors having personal liabilities to the bank of £168,000.

A number of bids were made for the PLC's assets following an announcement in the London Gazette, and an outside company — The Comic Book Corporation — was created to own the Barnet headquarters and its assets.

The three original directors and key personnel have been employed, though none have any shareholding in the new company which, following liquidation of the PLC, will trade as Stateside Comics Ltd.

With large personal debts to repay over the next few years, Sassienie added, "We're down, but not out!".

IN BRIEF

Publishing guides

NEGOTIATIONS are proceeding over the change in publishing of The Comic Book Price Guide for Great Britain.

Several leading book publishers have expressed an interest and editor Duncan McAlpine anticipates no rescheduling for the next edition which is planned for mid 1995.

McAlpine remains as editor/compiler and looks forward to the increased profile through an established book publisher's backing.

Belgium invites strips

THE Bronzen Adhemar Stichting v.z.w is a comics society based in Turnhout, Belgium (named after a famous comic strip character created by Flemish cartoonist Marc Sleen).

The group organises a local convention every two years, with attendences averaging 20,000. The society intends to make small press/self published comics a central theme of their next convention, to be held in December 1995.

Submissions are now being requested from British creators for a 180 page album, to be published by the society concurrently with the convention and distributed to all major Flemish comics publishers.

Specifications are as follows:

- Strips should be in black and white, A4 format, maximum length of six pages.
- Complete stories rather than episodes should be submitted.
- Copyright will be retained by the creator(s).
- Submissions accepted will be published as received.
- Previously unpublished work will be preferred.
- Submissions previously published only in small press publications will be considered if accompanied by letters from the creator(s) giving permission for their use; this will be to avoid copyright problems.
- No fee is offered, but contributors' copies will be provided.

The closing date for submissions is February 28th, 1995. Submissions and further enquiries should be addressed to: Bronzen Adhemar Stichting v.z.w., Peter Van Laarhoven, p.a. Patersstraat 96, B-2300 Turnhout, Belgium. Fax/tel: 01032 14 42 88 29. (Mike Kidson)

New Creation

COMICS creators have joined mainstream novelists in a celebration of the work of H P Lovecraft.

Creation Books of London has released Starry Wisdom, an anthology of modern writings and artwork inspired by the horror novelist including contributions from William Burroughs, Ramsey Campbell, J. G. Ballard and Brian Lumley, as well as Alan Moore and Grant Morrison.

Retailing for £9.95, the 184 page paperback includes over 50 pages of original graphics.

Sesame birthday

CHILDREN'S Television Workshop has announced the appointment of Patrick, Sinfield Limited as its licensing representative for the UK and Ireland. Patrick, Sinfield Ltd will be managing all merchandising and publishing activity for Sesame Street, Ghostwriter and other CTW properties as well as the new Gerry Anderson tv series launching in January, Space Precinct, starring Rob Youngblood.

Titan collection

TITAN Books is releasing the sixth volume of Murray Ball's Footrot Flats. The cartoon serial which runs in Today newspaper is also syndicated throughout the world.

Footrot Flats Vol 6 is released on 20th October, priced £2.99.

Shelton on tour

FABULOUS Furry Freak Brothers creator Gilbert Shelton will be signing copies of his latest Knockabout collection Famous Tales of Fat Freddy's Cat throughout the UK and Ireland during November.

On Saturday 12th November he will be at Forbidden Planet in London; on the 15th he will be at the Friar Street Bookshop in Reading; on the 16th back in London at Tower Records in Piccadilly. He then moves north and is at AKA in Glasgow and Forbidden Planet, Edinburgh on Thursday 17th before ending the signing tour in Dublin on Friday, November 18th.

New Doctor Who

MARVEL UK has launched a new bi-monthly magazine aimed at Doctor Who fans.

The 16 page Doctor Who Poster Magazine is in newsagents now and is priced £1.50.

Race biography

FROM his debut in 1954 in the first issue of Tiger, to the helicopter crash that ended his career in 1993, generations of schoolboys have followed the exploits of Roy of the Rovers.

Now, the fictional footballer's life-story is being told in Roy of the Rovers: The Playing Years.

Starting with reproductions of the original Tiger strips and the later Roy of the Rovers comic, this book traces the fictional biography of Roy Race and his team, Melchester Rovers.

Compiled by Peter Acton and Colin Jarman, Roy of the Rovers: The Playing Years is released on October 24th and retails in shops for £14.99 or direct from the publishers at Windmill Cottage, Mackerye End, Harpenden, Herts.

New Zit and Viz

THE PAN Handle is a new hard back collection of Viz strips from issues 53 to 57 and is on sale now, priced £6.99.

A Kipper Full of Zit is this year's 64 page hard cover annual from the Zit stable. The book collects the best of the humour magazine from issue 11 to 30 and goes on sale on November 7th, at the lower price of £4.99.

French festival

THE 1995 Angoulême international Comics Festival takes place between January 26-29.

The festival this year is honouring the Italian contribution to international comics art.

Topps change

THE TOPPS Company has moved its newsstand distribution business to Comag with immediate effect.

Bolton's Vampir

HIGH HEELS Productions has announced the release of a set of trading cards based on John Bolton's series of Vampire paintings.

The 11 chromium card set called Vampir is scheduled to be available from December and has a retail price of £19.95.

There is also a limited edition set featuring an additional foil stamped card autographed by Bolton and a limited edition crate set, with the packaging hand painted by Bolton.

James Joyce comics

ICON Books is releasing Joyce for Beginners, a new 176 page paperback retailing for £7.99, on November 3rd.

Written by David Norris with art by Carl Flint, the book acts as an easy introduction to the works of the famous Irish author.

McBamms are back

THE Mad MacBam Brothers, once a regular feature in Scotland's erstwhile humour comic Electric Soup, are now starring in their own title, which arrived in specialist shops last month.

Created by Dave Alexander, the over-refreshed and under-talented trio of Tam, Shug and Pudden return after an 18 month absence.

MacBam Brothers #1, largely Alexander's own work, features the long-lost last segment of the brothers' adventures in Electric Soup, plus a number of new misadventures.

Alexander, a freelance graphics designer and illustrator, is now seeking to tie up distribution and sales deals which will take the magazine out into the wider market place. He confirms that a second issue will possibly be available sometime before 1999. Rob Reid

HARPERCOLLINS COMPETITION

Your chance to win a free copy of the new £14.99 224 page paperback Understanding Comics: The Invisible Art by Scott McCloud

Not simply restricted to The Beano and the Peanuts strip — cartoons and comics are now enjoying a resurgence in popularity and interest. There are a growing number of enthusiasts ranging from Jonathan Ross to the Duke of Edinburgh. Comics have joined the retro fashion and are now officially hip. Scott McCloud, a popular cartoonist in his own right, has written the guide to comics and has gone a long way to placing them back in mainstream popular culture.

Scott McCloud, in this unique book, takes the form of a cartoon character and explains with clarity and wit the structure, meaning, and appeal of comics, and provides a running analysis of comics as art, literature and communication. He traces the history of the medium and examines their place in today's pop culture.

Understanding Comics offers the single best introduction to the world's most misunderstood art form and innovatively creates this book in comic format.

Hoof-Hearted's one-shot return

SPOOF western Hoof Hearted, the Bud Neill tribute published by the creators of Scotland's adult humour comic, Electric Soup, may take the trail again.

Editor Tom Sommerville confirms that the story for the second issue is nearly complete, featuring once again the adventures of the Lollipop Kids, Clamp, Campsie Glen and Wee Barra, on their journey east.

Issue two, however, will feature stronger meat, dealing with some of the infamous Glasgow issues of the past, such as religious prejudice.

Sales of issue one, launched at the Glasgow Comics Convention earlier this year, were better than expected according to Sommerville, whose aim is to achieve monthly publication of the title.

Issue one featured a special foreword by Sergio Aragones, himself a Bud Neill fan, and Jeff (Bone) Smith has offered to do the homours for the second issue, scheduled for release at Christmas.

Hoof Hearted is Sommerville's second foray into the work of Scottish comics humour.

Electric Soup was launched in 1990, in two-colour cover format, and achieved an initial circulation of just under 10,000 on its home territory.

Aiming to extend south of the border, and with the ultimate ambition of working on the publication full time, the editorial team linked their fortunes with the burgeoning John (Viz) Brown empire. Despite the impetus, and according to Sommerville, because of the recession, Electric Soup began to slide from a high of 26,000 in July 1991, to just under 16,000 a year later. Although sales in England were still weak, the magazine began to regain ground on its home territory, and issue 17 — the last to date — finished with a respectable run of just under 20,000.

It may yet re-emerge as a one-off special, although Sommerville feels that he and his cohorts have outgrown the toilet-humour of much of Electric Soup's contents.

He admits that a more practical obstacle is the difficulty faced in trying to produce a regular creative publication while holding down a day job at the same time. (Rob Reid)

Small press with big ambitions

BRISTOL-BASED publisher Drat 'n' Blast has gone international with the release of the third issue of the anthology magazine Scenes From the Inside. The latest issue has shipped to as far away as San Francisco and Johannesburg.

The 64 page £2.75 comic features the work of self-publishers from around Britain, ranging from "funny ha-ha" to "funny peculiar".

Editor Matthew Burton has been heartened by praise from some of America's leading independent creators such as Jim (Jim) Woodring and Terry (Cud) LaBan and announced at UKCAC that he had secured a distribution deal with Titan, Diamond and AK Press.

Also from Bristol is Bonafide Productions who have just released the second issue of Bonafide, a black & white anthology comic.

Issue #1 (following #0) is a £1.50 quarterly with work by Jerry Holiday, Nick Walker & Mark Swan.

Bonafide is also involved in projects creating theatre, film and designer clothing.

MEDIAFILE

Associate editor Sarah Bolesworth looks at recent media coverage of comics and related product

"HOPPING MAD! Beatrix child abuse bunnies" is, as a headline, on a par with the then Sun editor Kelvin McKenzie's famous "Freddie Starr ate my hamster". Starr was, of course, the butt of a sales-boosting joke.

The "Beatrix" headline was no joke for comics creator Bryan Talbot and was seemingly actuated by a desperate bid for sales on the publisher's part.

Talbot sent a review #copy of his new graphic novel, The Tale of One Bad Rat (Dark Horse), to the Thompson Newspapers-owned Sunday Sun, a tabloid based in Newcastle on Tyne. Jobbing hack Ian Robson responded with a positive feature, explaining how empathy with Beatrix Potter's anthropomorphic characters gave a sexually abused girl the strength to survive and deal with the issue of her abuse. Robson even quoted the chairman of the Beatrix Potter Society: "I am delighted to see [Potter's] work used in such an inspirational way." So far, so good.

But when it appeared in the Sunday Sun (2.10.94), Robson's piece had been so hacked about by editorial staff on the paper that the disparity between the screaming headline — with cross-heads of ATTACKED and PERVERT — and the text was an insult to readers.

The readers. That's if there are any readers left. The paper is said to be haemorrhaging sales, and the Sunday Sun has, local media sources told Comics International, been "conducting a war of attrition against its own journalists", instigating what one media worker called a "reign of terror" at Thompson House in Newcastle. Described as "dated trash" by the same source, the Sunday Sun's circulation manager has, reportedly, left — allegedly after he was found to have been falsifying the newspaper's sales figures. A former Thompson House employee alleged that staff were being encouraged to buy the newspapers they work on in order to increase sales — on expenses.

When editorial staff are under this kind of pressure from publishers desperate to increase revenue, they are "encouraged" to write headlines that will appeal to the most prurient interest — in the case of One Bad Rat, a fiction of the "outrage" of Beatrix Potter fans and "child abuse bunnies".

A Rose among turgids

The broadsheet press is less susceptible to this kind of pressure — but it is vulnerable to poor journalism, as exemplified by a recent edition of The Guardian's G2 supplement.

"Strip tease" was the turgid headline on a feature about Scott McCloud's Understanding Comics in The Guardian's Friday G2 tabloid section this month (30.9.94).

Former NME journalist Cynthia Rose wrote of McCloud's guide to the medium: "The book is a spunky, 215-page disquisition [long discourse] on the nature of comics." And with that single statement, Rose telegraphed two related facts: she knows something about comics and, although she'll use "disquisition" where "discourse" would do, she is culturally literate.

Rose has, since her days at the NME, published several authoritative and readable books about contemporary culture, and her comprehensive feature could do much to drag the medium out of the Nerd & Investment ghetto it inhabits in the UK press.

But she could not anticipate the paucity of imagination of the editorial team on the relaunched Friday Guardian G2.

The Understanding Comics review was given pride of place on the supplement's cover (style: undesigned) with a self-portrait by McCloud accompanied by the copy: "Comic belief — Scott McCloud sees the serious side of a funny business".

Rose's work was, therefore effectively undermined by the work of the G2 sub-editors. Guardian readers are by definition predisposed to enjoy and understand comics; cliches like "Strip tease" are, therefore, likely to be an inspiration-free zone for them.

Well spotted

But the advent of targeted newspaper marketing means that each section of a newspaper has its own team, in which editorial environments and practice differ accordingly.

The week before "Strip tease" appeared, The Guide — The Guardian's Saturday listings magazine — published a review of The X-Men Adventures (9.15am, BBC1, Saturday) animated TV series that could have appeared in any comics fanzine.

Robert Leedham's style was breathless: "But happy, happy, joy, joy! Morph gets killed off in the very first episode. The cartoonists [sic] have obviously been studying their Aeon Flux and manga videos, and the writers have slipped in plenty of sly adult jokes ..." This, with a half-page X-Men visual. Robert, you've been spotted.

Arcadian dreams

Spotted too was "Comic Caper" Ron Castree, who, as Bernard Silk pointed out in the Daily Mail's Enterprise: Money Mail supplement (29.9.94) "has his plans ... all worked out".

Yes indeed, with a little working out, Arcadia shops owner Ron Castree took top spot in Enterprise, with a quarter-page colour picture of him, in situ Arcadia. With text, the feature — under the head "Superman for sale" (hey, whaddya want?) gave him over half a page of publicity in a national newspaper.

The working out that Rob did was that newspapers have got to have something to put inside all their extra, targeted supplements. Since he clearly is enterprising, it was mutually advantageous for both the Daily Mail and for Rob to publish the piece.

Working in the comics business? Remember the golden rule: publishers like to have their backs scratched, and journalists their egos stroked. But Rob's got it taped: publicity's his forte. The concluding paragraph in the feature was a quote from him: "The timeless appeal of the comic is escapism. As people increasingly need a break from real life, it can only mean greater popularity for comics of all kinds." The man should be in politics.

At home with McCarthy

The border territory of bleak reality, where the real reveals the surreal, is artist Brendan McCarthy's natural habitat.

McCarthy's approach is — like Ron Castree's, enterprising — and typical of the generation of comics professionals whose fate it is (it seems) to save the business.

Witness McCarthy's progress: from the Freakwave strip in Strange Days, through Rogan Gosh for Fleetway and Vertigo; Skin for Tundra; then the quantum leap to cel animation for Hanna-Barbera and CAD-animation sequences for MTV, storyboarding on Emmy-winning Storyteller and on Coneheads.

McCarthy's latest coup is the visualisation of Reboot, a new computer-animated TV series produced by The Hub that achieved highest-ever ratings for the US ABC network during a Saturday morning 3-part pilot.

And the distinguishing traits of these two (albeit distinctly different) entrepreneurs? Hunger and professionalism.

OPENS MIDDAY

RANSON NOTES

A monthly column in which leading comics artist Arthur Ranson examines the social impact, artistic content and foibles of contemporary comics and their creators.

PLANNING to write about the United Kingdom Comic Art Convention (every word of which begs a question) I thought to make notes and play at being a journalist for the event.

My myopic mental grasp of names and dates has been the object of my intimates amusement, tolerance or impatience, depending on just how patronising they are, for years. Recently, my watchacallit — memory, has been shakier than ever, so a written record of events seemed essential if a coherent account of my time at Russell Square was to be hoped for. The trade day on Friday I missed because I could not recall what time it started.

Friday evening I had something to do more important to me even than a DC party.

Saturday, I got to UKCAC around midday but had forgotten to take my notebook and pen. The minute to minute historical record being impossible therefore here is an impressionist cop out. Good bits and bad bits in no particular order.

Good: a painting of a SF aqua-diver with mermaids. The print on sale at the Conquistador table where I did a signing in the vain hope of attracting buyers for my own stuff.

Bad: the guy who asked for an autograph saying he liked my work no matter what anyone else said.

Good: the person who triggered the piece about racial minorities in comics, written after the last UKCAC, turned up, said thank you.

Bad: described by me as a schoolboy, he is in his twenties. They all look the same to me, the under twenty-fives.

Good: an enthusiastic, adapt or die, duologue on computer-aided graphics from John Higgins & Dave Gibbons.

Bad: the price of that stuff!

Good: recognising Susan Caroline from the photograph on the back of her funny and quirky little book Overheard in an American Diner and being able to introduce myself.

Bad: I called her Shirley Christine. It's close, but not close enough. She now believes I am a pick-up pervert and I will never get the autographed copy I had hoped for.

Good: having time to talk to Brian Bolland over lunch. I won't embarrass either of us by saying how much I admire him.

Bad: the lunch. Misleadingly called chile con carne, it was mince on a nodding acquaintance with black beans of a paranoid disposition, on a graveyard of rice.

Good: being asked to join a panel to discuss the work and influence of Jack Kirby. Rarely invited on panels I had considered sulking until this request came.

Bad: I don't think I shall be asked again.

Good: one subject of discussion at lunch with Brian Bolland, Paul Gravett and I had been Warren Ellis's Comics World article wondering if, had Jack Kirby never existed, comics would have been less superhero-centred. We pondered on whether comics and their creators might have been more diverse, more individualistic. Impossible to say but an interesting subject for speculation and a catalyst to provoke ideas about the nature of comics. I thought I had formulated a beginning to my contribution to the panel on Kirby and his influence.

Bad: the mistake I made was to start by quoting Warrens's deliberately provocative few words of introduction to his Kirby piece in Comics World — "Jack Kirby is shit!" This stimulated such anger in one member of the audience that I never got to formulate the thesis I had in mind. Is "a wave of hate from the auditorium" a figment of a pulp fiction writer's imagination? Despite later saying that Kirby was creative, innovative, imaginative, a wonderful communicator, original and a great talent, I was still told in the bar subsequently, that the idea that I thought Kirby was rubbish had taken hold. Even Warren Ellis does not believe that. Ah well.

Good: Tom DeFalco sat next to me on stage and apart from his reasoned and informed contribution to the public discussion, in a brief private chat he pointed out some techniques of Kirby that were interesting in themselves, but also made me wonder if I had been influenced by Kirby in ways I had not previously recognised.

Bad: the panel shared studio gossip and apocryphal stories about Kirby, of which I know nothing and, though I recognise others do, I have little interest. I mentally dropped out then, but the chairman saw to it that the talking time was shared equally. Between him and the other four panellists.

Good: Paul Gravett showed slides of late Kirby work I had never seen before. Wonderful big paintings. On view at the Museum of Cartoons, details elsewhere I trust.

Bad: David Pinnet, freelance artist and computer whiz, is ruining his life and health struggling to make a place for himself. Don't do it, folks. Ambition is fine but dead famous?

Good: bought a copy of Scott McCloud's Understanding Comics, which I have since read and think you should too.

Bad: it includes some ideas I intended for my book (book? Is he serious?) and thought I was first to have. Now who will believe I invented them for myself?

Good: DC Comics bought John Wagner, Senor and Senora Carlos Ezquerra and me a Chinese meal via Andy Helfer. I warmed to Andy as he sounds exactly like my brother who lives in New York. Andy and Carlos swopped digital technology stories and showed off their toys. John and I struggled to remain unconvinced. You know when people use expressions like, "being propelled into the 21st century" or "taking us into the next millennia". Don't you like the way that implies we have a choice? Propelled, taken. As if — should we prefer not to take active steps — we could stay in the 20th?

Bad: had to return home after the meal thus missing, judging from Andy's stories about hotel bar night-life, what might have been an interesting time.

Good: seeing Graham Higgins, Alan Grant, Phil Gascoine, David Lloyd et al. and getting a chance to talk to them.

Bad: never seeing them again that weekend. Where do people get to? For purely selfish reasons I would like a nice elitist guest room, hospitality suite, celebrity cell, psueds corner, or whatever you call it. Just so I would know where to find people. With food and drink. Waitress service. TV monitors relaying the talks. Distributors and publishers paying.

Good: meeting the fans. Even the one who asked me to draw Danger Mouse and Penfold. Even the young lady who asked me to draw "someone wicked", having no idea of what I do.

Bad: having such a lousy memory for names I'm nervous of talking to faces I know perfectly well.

Good: being told by a visitor, whether because of or despite its genial disorganisation, that this was the "best UKCAC ever!" It was the one I felt happiest at.

Bad: heard only half of one talk and missed the fancy dress. Partly due to commitments, partly my wish to meet old friends. The con booklet did not get opened until I got home.

Good: drawing of Iron..ing Man in the booklet.

Bad: missed my own chance to contribute. Why didn't someone remind me of the deadline?

Good: the cost of a sandwich in the bar.

Bad: the cost of a gin and tonic in the bar.

Good: found, at reasonable prices, a big pile of comics featuring the character I am interested in.

Bad: the responsible editor has already told me he does not want my story for this character. Why am I still buying these things? I'm no collector.

Good: three stunning young women. Objectively speaking.

Bad: too few women and children. Subjectively speaking.

Good: Marvel had a stand after missing last year.

Bad: the general impression of the stands was that no-one felt it necessary to spend any time, money or thought on them.

Good: Sue Grant mothering me, putting my name tag on the right way. Twice.

Bad: no exhibition of artwork. One punter at least felt misled, having expected one.

Would it not be possible for a show to be put on by the dealers? They have enough material to mount an exhibition of artwork, or comics on a theme. It would be interesting for us and useful for them. Description labels could include price and dealers name.

Whichever of the following two sentences is good, which bad, can be selected to taste.

(i) Two people I met said complimentary things about this column.

(ii) This is the last one.

It has been a pleasure and a privilege. Your support — I shall wear it always. Thank you for my small share of your time and your money. To those who have helped with ideas and information and so far received no acknowledgement, well it is too late to expect it now. If I have raised a smile, a question, an eyebrow, blood pressure, cash, my profile, noses over parapets, a fist, hands in disbelief, expectations, then my living has not been in vain. When I started this I did not expect to change the world, but if I have made the slightest difference I will be content. Amazed, but content.

Thank you. © Arthur Ranson, 1994

ADVANCE LISTINGS

READERS: You can use this Advance Listings section as an order form with your direct sale retailer or mail order supplier. Simply mark the items you require, preferably in red or blue pen or with a highlight marker. Then detach this section of the magazine and return it to your supplier, together with a note of your name, address and phone number and guarantee not missing any of the new titles being published. Certain retailers may not accept standing orders, so check with them first. Using this system will also help your supplier when ordering titles, to know which are presold.

All prices of US titles listed are in dollars. Where dollar and sterling prices (ie $1.50/£1) is stated, UK price is not the air-freighted import price, but instead denotes that the title will be nationally distributed approximately ten weeks later at a lower-than-airfreight price. Import prices are usually converted at a rate of $1.00 = 80p.

Shipping dates given are usually one week before airfreight copies arrive with your retailer/mail order supplier. All dates, prices and information are assumed to be accurate as provided by publishers. Late shipping, cancellations and changes in content will be detailed in future issues of Comics International*.*

The STARRY WISDOM

A TRIBUTE TO H P LOVECRAFT

J G BALLARD • WILLIAM S BURROUGHS
RAMSEY CAMPBELL • JOHN COULTHART
MICHAEL GIRA • RICK GRIMES
JAMES HAVOC • BRIAN LUMLEY
ALAN MOORE • GRANT MORRISON and many others

Contemporary visions of cosmic transformation, mutation and madness inspired by, or coinciding with, the thoughts and writings of H P Lovecraft.

Here the primal beings of Lovecraft's Cthulhu Mythos stalk a post-modern landscape of sexual derangement, social collapse, ethnic cleansing, genetic engineering and nuclear devastation – nightmare prophecies from his pulp pages which have now come chillingly true.

Including many brand new, previously unpublished prose and graphic works, plus select reprints, to form a fascinating document which will appeal not only to readers of H P Lovecraft, but to all lovers of innovative art and literature in the science fiction, horror and fantasy genres.

Available from all good bookstores, or direct from the publishers at £9.95 + 55p postage. Credit cards accepted.

JUST COMICS

2,CROSSMEAD AVENUE, GREENFORD, MIDDLESEX UB6 9TY

Ever wished you could afford to advertise in one of the top three selling titles in UK comic shops?

YOU CAN! Everybody knows that Spawn and the X-Men are the top-selling monthlies in most UK comic shops. But do you know what is third? According to our surveys, over the last two years it has consistently been Comics International.

On average, comic shops get though over 100 copies every month. And that excludes quantities distributed by mail order & mart dealers, export copies, or such professional organisations as the Comics Creators Guild & The Cartoonists Club of Great Britain.

Now you know why we over 90% of our advertisers continue every issue. It works.

We've never sold space, we don't make deals or special offers (not even with editorial contributors!). If you want to advertise, the details are on page two.

But you'll have to call us, we don't hard sell because we don't need to. Phone us any time between 10.30am and 6.00pm Monday to Friday to talk about advertising. We'll tell you our sales levels (not just our print run or "circulation"), returns levels, export, our comic shop and newsagent ratio, just about everything a potential advertiser could want to know.

But don't ask for the advertising department. We don't have one because we're not trying to sell you anything.

q & a

Comics International, 8 Trinity Road, London N2 8JJ

Comics International invites you to submit your comics-related queries, both for your own enlightenment, and that of our general readership.

Please remember that Comics International is not the comic world's answer to Directory Enquiries or an advice telephone line. We set up this column so everybody would get to hear popular questions answered, but we still receive at least six phone calls every day for phone numbers, addresses and advice.

We'll answer queries in print, in this column, but we can't really handle the myriad questions constantly being thrown at us on a one-to-one service. Now if we were running an 0891 service, that would be different.

On to your letters, and first up, an answer...

A partial answer to S. Pelluet's question in last issue's Comics International about cyber-comix:

Raggedyman was a six issue mini-series — the first issue was published by Brave New Words (of Providence, Rhode Island) as Raggedy Man. The other five issues came from Cult Press (of Torrance, California) titled Raggedyman.

Issue 1 is copyrighted 1992 whilst issue 6 is cover dated February 1994.

The creative team was the same for all six issues: T. M. Lowe (writer), Anthony Jon Hicks (artist) and Bryan Talbot (cover artist).

Cult Press recently released all six issues as a bagged set that also included a signed and numbered print by Tony Hicks and limited to 500 copies. The first issue in this set was signed by both Lowe and Hicks.

Considering that all six issues carried a $2.50 cover price, this bagged set is great value at just $11.95.

In the Q & A section of Comics International #47, Robert Hoffman asks if anyone knows the order that DC's 1991 War of the Gods crossover should be read in.

Unable to resist this sort of challenge, I dug out and read all the issues and think I've figured it out. What you need to bear in mind, however, is that it's basically part of the Wonder Woman continuity and that in order to fully make sense of War of the Gods you really need to read the Wonder Woman issues that act as a prologue to it.

Here then is my list:

1 ..... Wonder Woman 50-57
2 ..... War of the Gods 1
3 ..... Wonder Woman 58
4 ..... Man of Steel 3
5 ..... Hawkworld 15
6 ..... Starman 38
7 ..... LEGION '91 #31
8 ..... Captain Atom 56
9 ..... Hawk & Dove 28
10 ..... Doctor Fate 32
11 ..... Flash 55
12 ..... Wonder Woman 59
13 ..... War of the Gods 2
14 Justice League Europe 31
15 ..... Batman 470
16 ..... Doctor Fate 33
17 ..... Animal Man 40
18 ..... Captain Atom 57
19 ..... Hawkworld 16
20 ..... Wonder Woman 60
21 ..... Suicide Squad 58
22 ..... War of the Gods 3
23 ..... New Titans 81
24 ..... Wonder Woman 61
25 ..... The Demon 17
26 ..... War of the Gods 4
27 ..... Wonder Woman 62

And while we're on the subject of Q & A... When recently searching through a comicbook price guide for something else entirely, I came across the entry for Crack Comics #1 (Quality, May 1940) which included the first appearance of a character called Madame Fatal who, according to the guide, "is a man dressed up as a woman".

I don't imagine this character was developed the way he/she would be if revived as a Vertigo character and written by one of those degenerate British writers whose work we all admire, so what was the story?

How ling did the character last and, since the notion of a transvestite crime fighter seems pretty daring for 1940 (we don't even have one today!), was this strip in fact as innocent as I assume it must have been?

Thanks, Rob. You answer one question then hit us with a real toughie. Makes a grown Q&A answerman feel inept but we'll just have to throw this one out to our assembled readership for help too.

I have been collecting comics for a few years now and the collection has reached the point where the house insurance will no longer cover it.

I would like to know if there are any insurance companies out there who will insure comics.

We've asked in the past, to no avail. Personally I favour a very loud doberman as my insurance. But surely somebody in our 22,000 readers has found a reliable insurance policy? Are there no insurance agent readers who could investigate? There must be many collectors eager to know...

COMICS ECONOMICS

The direct sale market now represents over 85% of US comics publishers sales revenue. The following shows the top titles ordered through the four leading UK & US direct sales distributors. As such it does not reflect retail sales, but instead total orders placed by traders anticipating their retail sales three months ahead. compiled by Phil Hall

Comics International Top 50: October 1994

WHILE the facing page's charts for the two major US distributors and their UK equivalents throw up interesting differences between buying trends in each country, to overview the total ordering, Comics International produces its own top fifty chart. The only combined chart in the industry.

Taking the order levels from each company and factoring in the size of each operation, we are able to produce a chart reflecting the entire month with far greater accuracy than those produced for the record, film or book industry.

As always, this represents the trade orders for titles — meaning retailers believe they can sell the books they are ordering. Whether consumers choose to buy them is a different matter. (Key: re = re-entry)

Marvel Comics maintains its market lead by again taking 40% of the chart. The company lost the top spot to Spawn's resolicited issues, but its latest mutant launch Generation X remains in the top 5 along with the two leading X-Men titles.

Bishop is the highest new entry and it helps the X-Men family to 60% of the top 10 and eight titles in the top 13 positions. X-Men Unlimited is the only re-entry in the chart and comes back at #10.

The other X-books had indifferent effects on the chart. Cable bounced back up the chart and into the top 30 by going up eight places. Excalibur and X-Factor both climbed back up the charts, while X-Force dropped back a couple of places and Wolverine, X-Men and Uncanny X-Men all fell by one place.

X-Men 2099 is a non-mover, but on the strength of five new releases charting ahead of it, Marvel can be satisfied that sales have finally settled down on the leading 2099 title.

Fantastic Four has stayed put in the chart, and as the oldest Marvel superhero comic heads towards #400, the comic holds the distinction of being this month's highest climber. The return of Reed Richards may have something to do with it.

The Hulk and the Spider-Man family were the only other Marvel fallers. All of these titles, however, are expected to move back up the chart within the next six months, as most of them have anniversary issues looming and the conclusion of the Spider-clone storyline will undoubtedly add to the Spider-Man family sales.

Notable new entires included: Hulk 2099, which is unlikely to place next month and the one-shot Tales to Astonish, a title where demand may well outweight supply. Venom's latest mini-series moved the symbiote back up the chart, but his days look numbered. This is the lowest "new" story arc placement in Eddie Brock's life as a superhero.

Image Comics 28% showing in the chart is a 4% fall on last month, ironically following a 4% rise the previous month. This appears to be a recent trend for the Image titles, whenever WildC.A.T.s or Cyberforce chart, the percentage goes up.

The six image fallers are Stormwatch, Badrock and Company, Dooms IV, WildC.A.T.s Adventures, Youngblood and Deathblow, with Deathblow getting close to dropping out of the top 50 after ten consecutive issues. This was balanced out with four titles entering the chart, the Team 7 four-issue mini-series, the three-issue Black and White — Art Thibert's new mini, the ongoing Backlash and the WildC.A.T.s Sourcebook.

Hellshock was Image's only non-mover, holding its position at 23.

DC Comics shares 28% of the top 50 this month with Image and maintains its place with one top ten placing comic every month: Batman/Predator II: Bloodmatch (one of a plethora of long titled comics this month) charts at a high of #9. This story reunites Doug Moench with Paul Gulacy (a combination renowned for their Master of Kung Fu series for Marvel).

The Superman family continues to slide a little, but with two Spawns, three new entries and a re-entry all ahead of them, DC should not be too disheartened, especially as the books have yet to fall out of the top 20 since the uplift start of the Death of Superman serial in 1992.

Bat books other than the Predator team-up title all lose ground with the exception of DC's perennial yo-yo Batman: Legends of the Dark Knight — this time moving back up the charts by five places — and Robin which is tying even more closely to the Batman books.

Sandman has dropped slightly, but unlike other titles that frequent the bottom half of the chart, its presence does seem to be guaranteed as we approach the final stages of the comic.

Green Lantern's rediscovered popularity seems to be on the wane. With the exception of #0, the title has steadily dropped over the last few months, and it may be that its days are numbered in the Top 50.

General analysis The following popular titles failed to generate enough sales for the top 50:

From Marvel: Force Works #6, Daredevil #335, Spider-Man 2099 #26, Fantastic Force #2, Spider-Man Adventures #1.

DC: Batman Castle of the Bat graphic novel, Star Trek Next Generation/Star Trek Deep Space Nine #1.

Image titles which failed to place in this month's top 50: Shadowhawk #14, Supreme #20, Bloodstrike #15, Newmen #7, Youngblood Strikefile #8, Brigade #13, Codename: Strykeforce #8, Savage Dragon #14, Supreme: Glory Days #1, Prophet Sourcebook, Troll Halloween Special and Freak Force #9 which again collects Image's wooden spoon for the fourth month in a row.

Dark Horse: Aliens/Predator: Deadliest of the Species #8 and Classic Stars Wars: Return of the Jedi #1 both chart in the 100.

Malibu Comics achieved two notable top 100 entries, both connected to their Star Trek Deep Space Nine comics. But DC's Star Trek: Next Generation/Star Trek Deep Space Nine section of the comic crossover charted nominally better.

Harris charted in the top 100 with its flagship title Vengeance of

The disposable chunk

Comment by Sumit Paul-Choudhury, Earlsfield, London

Comics just aren't good at dealing with what are usually thought of as 'heavy' issues; what they are good at is amazing artwork, page-turning plots and (very) occasionally challenging ideas.

All the defensive folks who write into Vertigo books and start off with "I don't usually read comics, but a friend gave me this and it's right up there with Hemingway and Salinger" can give up the struggle. I employ the opposite tack when defending my eccentricity to sceptical friends: I read most comics for the reasons they watch Neighbours, they're quick, refreshingly uncomplicated and fun. Numerous attempts to sell comics to the general public have failed ignominously, despite displays of almost evangelical fervour (and let's not bring up the tired old counterexample of the Japanese and their golfing-schoolgirl-porn commuter books; without getting xenophobic about it, it's a different culture there) and I don't think that's going to change. Unless, as is finally beginning to happen now, comics start to promote themselves as great entertainment and not as the artistic development of the century. (After all, parallel claims are made by the lunatic fringe of the Trekker community).

Like it or not, comics have been around for a sufficiently long time that if they were going to crack the mainstream they would have done it by now, and modifying their content to overlap with what already exists in other formats is a pointless strategy. We're left with a huge chunk of material that is subliterate and diposable, some that is subliterate but enjoyable, and the tip of the iceberg that is genuinely challenging and innovative.

Pushing all of this on the public as an exciting new experience just won't wash. To paraphrase the self-help manual, comic readers love too much. Like indie music lovers in the '80s and SF afficionados in the '60s, adult comic fans act like a ghettoised but enlightened few who must lead the masses to a brave new world where everybody reads Cerebus on the Tube.

In this world-view, speculation, creator ownership and Image vs. Marvel are crucial key issues of concern to the whole of the (highly incestuous) comics community.

In point of fact, they're not: while these backstage shenanigans have a place in trade journals such as Comics International, they certainly don't belong in the lettercol of Spawn, or in any other normal consumer/producer relationship.

If you went to see Aladdin, odds are you weren't too worried about Robin Williams' salary wrangles, nor should you have been. The corporations who churn out mass-market crowd-pleasers and the pre-teens who pay for them certainly don't see things this way.

Grant Morrison has repeatedly urged his readers to throw away their comics (most recently in The Invisibles #1), claiming that their perceived merit is vastly in excess of their actual importance.

Although I think he's exhibiting a variety of intellectual cowardice when it comes to his own work, I'd have to agree with him as a matter of general policy.

Comic evangelists have lost their perspective. In the main, despite all the propaganda, comics are just for kids.

Snubbing the traders

Comment by Gary Ochiltree, Krypton Komics, London

What on earth do Marvel Comics think they're doing? As if it's not hard enough to work out sensible comic orders as it is, they seem determined to make it impossible.

The recent Avengers/ Thunderstrike Double Feature comics are a good example. When these comics were solicited, they were described as Avengers numbers 379-382 and Avengers Double Feature Limited series numbers 1-4. The Avengers comic was to feature the regular Avengers continuity and numbering, while the Double Feature was to contain the same Avengers pages with an additional Giant-Man strip and be numbered 1 to 4.

Armed with this information I placed what seemed like a sensible order at the time. I ordered my usual amount of Avengers (to supply my regular customers who would no doubt want to maintain their chronological collections) and a much smaller amount of the Double Feature, which was effectively a Giant-Man limited series. (Wow! Giant-Man! Just what we've all been waiting for!)

However, when the comics actually arrived the Double Feature was not a limited series at all. It held the same numbering and cover as Avengers. In fact it WAS Avengers with a back up strip. Net result? A large number of regular customers wanting to know why their copy was not the "proper one" with the back up strip, the one that was actually advertised as a limited series! (A limited series that starts with number 379! Now there's a concept!

"Surely this means that they're returnable?" I hear you say. Well, the criteria for returns are that they either ship more than thirty days late (which they didn't) or they are different than advertised. The Double Feature was definitely different than advertised, the problem is that they're all gone! It's Avengers I'm stuck with, and — since they're as advertised — they're not returnable. Cheers, Marvel. It's good to see you maintaining the high standards of customer assistance established with "Marvel Mart".

The worst aspect is that quite a few of my regular customers are now unhappy and feel they've missed out.

This is not the only example of poor policy by Marvel. Even more alarming is the recent decision to begin shipping newsstand editions two weeks later than their deluxe format counterparts. The whole point of having two different editions is to give the customer a choice. By delaying the newsstand editions that choice is effectively reduced to "Either pay more, or wait two weeks to read your favourite comics."

The key word in this sentence has to be read. It's the customers who want to read the comics who are the bread and butter of our business. This change in shipping policy is a direct slap in the face to these readers, and has already lost me, and therefore Marvel, sales.

It has always been very difficult to estimate accurately the likely sales of any given title. This problem was compounded by the introduction of the two versions: Deluxe and Newsstand. (The problem became not only how many can I sell, but how many and in what proportion of each type).

Now, with the shipping changes, I have to consider the possibility of regular customers walking away in disgust.

One customer said to me," Well if that's what the're going to do, fk 'em!" With that, he asked me to cancel his order for X-Factor after 106 consecutive issues.

I must admit, considering the nearly impossible ordering situation that I now face, I tend to agree with the sentiment he expressed.

Alas, poor Shooter...

Comment/obituary by Martin Shipp, Tottenham, London N17

SO Jim Shooter's Defiant Comics went belly-up. Somehow, like the Doom Patrol's Agent '!', this came as no surprise. In fact, the astonishing thing was that the company lasted as long as it did.

It made a lousy start with its ill-advised trading card gimmick, which alienated it from readers and dealers alike. Apart from Big Jim himself, it had nobody to speak of in terms of bankable talent, although as Ossie Ardiles will testify, bankable talent is no guarantee for success.

Most importantly, Defiant had no interesting characters. Or rather, the characters were nothing new: they were second generation rather than next generation, slightly fuzzy, not-quite-as-good copies of the books that had made Valiant a success.

This much was obvious even before the first book was published. The very titles made it plain. The Good Guys were Harbinger, Prudence and Caution were Archer and Armstrong, War Dancer was Eternal Warrior. These, then, were Jim's characters.

Then came Jim's plot. We saw it in Secret Wars (twice), we saw it again in Unity and again in Schism: major threat - heroes team up - minor heroes get offed - major threat gets butt kicked.

Defiant offered nothing original - even its name evoked Shooter's previous success — and leaves nothing worth mourning.

Now that Defiant's out of the way, who's next? Many years ago, when there was only one X-Men book and it was published bi-monthly, the venerable Comics Journal ran a Comics Company Cadaver Derby, offering odds on which of publishers would be next to go down the chute. Let's do it again, but remember kids, no nipping down to Ladbrokes — this is just for fun!

Aardvark-Vanaheim: reliant on one guy and one character. May be on the way out anyway if storyline is to be believed. Sim's an awkward old cuss, though. 50-1
Cartoon Books: as Aardvark-Vanaheim, but more so. 25-1
Continuity: whoops! Too late!
Dark Horse: After huge success with The Mask, may be tempted to ditch labour-intensive, low-profit comics in favour of higher risk but potential goldmine movies. Needs either major comic hit or equally major movie flop to decide. 33-2
DC Comics: Continual fragmentation into Bats/Supes/DCU/Milestone/Vertigo may see one or all sections sold off to satisfy Monster Corporate Parent. Upside: two genuine cultural icons, several comic book archetypes. Downside: too many B-grade books, possibility of Implosion II. 100-1
EC Comics: stays alive on excess revenue from idiots who can't tell EC from DC logos, or who buy Weird Science expecting to see Kelly LeBrock. Deserves to last forever, keeping classic material in (affordable) reach: alas, probably won't10-1
Eclipse: One day, fairly soon, the Queen Mother will pass away. She will, in all probability, outlast Eclipse Comics. no odds
Fantagraphics: Lords knows how it's lasted this long. Groth too ornery to quit, God love him, but plain economics says... 12-1
Image: see this bubble? It'll burst. Too many Z-grade books and way to much self-indulgence endangers entire company. Titles to continue under individual creators imprints rather than 'Image' umbrella. Rob Liefeld to be found sleeping in dumpster. With any luck. 25-1
Kitchen Sink: as Fantagraphics, but with more money. 12-1
Lightning: Oh, they've gone too.
Malibu: Ultraverse to toddle on for a while until waning consumer interest means cancellations: Bravura titles to last until waning creator interest... Star Trek, etc; let's see how much the license renewal costs, eh? 20-1
Marvel: As DC, mutants and Spider-Man to spin into seperate and discrete lines: remainder to go to the wall unless severe kick up the arse administered soon. X-mania's not immortal, and then what? 200-1
Tekno: Neil Gaiman's Mr Hero? Leonard Nimoy's The Primortals? Do the phrases "Jack Kirby's Satan's Six", "William Shatner's Tekworld" and "Clive Barker's Ectokid" ring any bells? Bought-in concepts of questionable strength, executed by (let's be honest here) not exactly top-line talent. 4-7

Topps: tricky. Not the World's Greatest Characters, not the World's Greatest Creators, and too young to have the security of a loyal readership. 20-1

Mirage: one day that Turtle money is going to run out... 17-2

Triumphant: God knows how they lasted this long. Oh, they didn't.

Valiant: weaker titles outnumbering the strong, lack of coherent overall editorial strategy... the next Marvel, all right. 100-1

Viz Communications: there'll always be manga fans. 100-1

Warp Graphics: and there'll always be Elf fans. Taste's a funny thing, isn't it? 35-1

And the winner of the first Defiant Comics Memorial Doomed At Birth Handicap is... Tekno Comix!

Be sure to be here for next year's race — they won't!

When the battle is over

Comment by Darren Mason, Milton Keynes

I committed the cardinal sin, I read a fanzine that I didn't pay for.

It was just sitting there on the coffee table at a friend's (I didn't mean to, it was just lying there looking all, you know... inviting.

Actually, this isn't the only time I've done it. I've been known to sneak into his bathroom with a copy of The Incredible Hulk or Comics International as well... but that could well be another letter in itself). So I opened it up and looked through it. I had seen this fanzine before. It's called Battleground and its produced by a chap called Andy Brewer.

Now, in the last couple of years, there hasn't really been anything on the market from (I beg your pardon for using this rather outmoded description) fandom (yeah, I know, fandom sounds so... Stan Lee) that has equalled this Mancunian magazine.

Despite some rather grotesque appearances over the last six issues, the content has been a well-balanced mix of mainstream and alternative comics. The right balance.

With issue 6 of Battleground, I realised that every aspiring fanzine editor has the desire to become Derek G. Skinn (what does the G stand for?). Not such a bad thing if we actually needed it. Metaphorically speaking, Comics International is a broadsheet newspaper, Comic World is like a News of the World colour supplement - all we need are some tits - and Battleground represented the Morning Star. It printed the thoughts of the fan, pre-homogenising or whatever. It enabled the fans who wanted a direct communication with other fans the chance, whether it be in praise or spitting bile.

What Battleground #6, and what BG #1 will ultimately be, is a decaffienated version of The Comics Journal. Self-opiniated and so anal retentive that its one time growing readership will eventually walk away from. What makes comics fans so interesting is how they've ridiculed their own self-importance.

In the Seventies, the eponomous letters column Battlefield was in Derek Skinn's Fantasy Advertiser, a fanzine that was judged on the content of its letters page rather than any of the interesting or plain boring articles that backed it up.

But there was a real desire (like with comics) to get the next issue to see what Mike Cruden, Paul Killinger, Pete Scott or Graeme Bassett were going to slag off, or how rude they would be and if any of them could get one-up on any of the others.

Therefore, when Andy Brewer announced that he was sterilising the letters column, another nail was planted in the small press's coffin.

I quote from Andy's editorial in the latest issue, "Letters of course, although maybe not as many as before as the confrontational aspect of Fallout will probably be reduced". Isn't that a little like asking for a pizza but asking the cook to hold the cheese and tomatoes?

When the small press decides that they are an exclusive club it's time to ask a few questions. Is Battleground a small press fanzine or is it a fanzine? Big difference, one is a magazine that deals mainly in small press productions, the other is a magazine that deals with all aspects of comics or whatever genre it pretends to patronise.

Battleground says it's leaving spandex for the likes of Comics International, Comic World and Wizard. That's big of it. Pigeon-hole spandex fans right along with morons, down syndrome victims and the village idiot. We are superhero fans, therefore we have no brains, perse se. Some of the best letters I've ever read have been confrontational letters dealing with spandex-clad superheroes.

I get the impression that the editorial change in Battleground is due more to the regular contributors than to the readers. Many of the letter writers are confessed spandex addicts. Contributors, I should think, have little marketing skills. It's a bit like the tobacco industry targetting terminally-ill cancer victims as its main source of income.

But, then again, it is Andy Brewer's magazine and if he so chooses to change his fanzine into a sycophantic appreciation of Fantagraphics, Kitchen Sink, Drawn & Quarterly and the plethora of small press masquerading as independent publishers from America, then who am I to stop him.

But this smug elitism that the small press seems to hold over the mainstream press is quite worrying. Battleground used to be the best thing since Fantasy Advertiser, the industry was crying out for another fandom-created magazine that told the most important perspective of the industry, that of the reader.

Two years down the line and Andy Brewer thinks he's a cross between Gary Groth and Jesus Christ and we have to hope that somebody else will come along and restore our sanity.

Rest in peace Battleground, if your epitaph was a end-of-term report it would have read, "Could have done much better if he hadn't got involved with the wrong crowd."

Last month I stressed the nearness of Christmas, which seemed to catch some of you unawares. Sorry about that folks. Its really almost on top of us now. The deadline for this list in in fact December 5th and very very soon we'll be into 1995. Sometime during 1995 you'll no doubt be hearing the first tentative forays into marketing hype for the Millennium, by the time that 1999 and 2000 come around I guarantee that you'll be heartily sick of it. I predict that in Comics we'll see Generation 2000, Millennium X, Captain Longjohns 1999, a Cosmic Cube that's the nexus of all realities, the cusp of the century and tick tock time crime galore. I wonder if Chronos will get his arm back? (If you haven't read 1993's Atom Special you're missing a treat).

As usual you'll find quite a few new stock items on display this month, from lots of old Batmans, (just look at what we've been able to do on very early Legends of the Dark Night) to Wizard and Prince.

I prattle on sometimes about the fact that we have over half a million books in stock, now, I think that that could be a definite understatement., I'll let you know. Maybe I should genuflect about the fact that we sell several hundred thousand comics a year to happy readers, but you know that anyway.... on with the dance.... strike up the band and lift the curtain on this richly extravagant production... The Comics Warehouse is now open to enjoy.,..

Please remember that all of our advertisements are completely self-contained and cannot be mixed or matched with any other advertisement or offer.The prices in this ad are valid from the publication of Comic International until December 5th 1994 only. All prices are per copy except "set" or "pack" prices which are for single sets as advertised, and remember that when ordering "mature" titles such as "Vertigo" we must have your honest signed statement that you are in excess of sixteen years.

Representing "Your Right to Read": We believe you have the right to be able to afford and enjoy comics

The minimum order is just £5.00 with a flat fee of £3.00 for delivery mainland UK: ,whatever the size of the order. See the fourth page of our advertisement for ordering instructions. Due to constantly increasing costs our flat rate fee for shipping has gone up to £3.00 per parcel mainland UK as from September 1st 1994).

Please note: to improve despatch we print our computer codes used for each title (eg DC71 = Batman: M300 = Uncanny X-Men). It would be extremely helpful to us if you would give the relevant computer code with your order, whether verbally with telephone orders or when listing written orders.

REVIEWS

It is the intention of Comics International to help comics readers keep abreast of the entire range of titles currently available through direct sale specialist shops, good newsagents and mail order companies. Few retailers allow titles in stock to be read before choosing purchases; Comics International's reviews are designed to counter this and draw readers' attention to comics they might otherwise ignore. Naturally, this section should be of even greater benefit to readers who rely solely on mail order, as they can only judge the quality of a new title after purchase.

Review codes: General competitive performance of a title is measured on a scale of 1 to 10. A specific issue's quality, as measured against previous issues: <- - -> to <+ + +>.*

Two ratings are used for the sake of detailed and fair coverage. The number following each review (on a scale of 1 to 10) is a quality comparison with other similar titles currently being published. We make no attempt to compare Bone to X-Men, but review each within the context of its own genre.

The individual issue is also rated within the confines of its previous issues. Hence a comparatively dull title may get a low number but a high rating for the specific issue reviewed (ranging from <-> to <+ + +> if there has been a notable improvement.

DC COMICS

Animal Man 77 (Delano & Snejbjerg) A drunken father with a gun causes trouble for the convoy. Given the potentially earth-shattering events it portrays, this book seems curiously low-key, but perhaps that is part of its appeal: Buddy might be a large bird-creature now but he and the other characters are just so convincing in their human fallibility. Delano's writing is at its best here, resisting the purple prose which sometimes mars his work. (RHo) 8

Snejbjerg brings a darker and flatter look to Animal Man than Steve Pugh's, and the ending that Delano seemed to predict is reduced to anticlimax, leading the book in another direction as Delano concludes his run on the book. Entertaining ecological thoughts as the comic finally sums up its title, a man who is an animal. (RJJ) 9

Aquaman 0 (David & Egeland + Vancata) I may be a cynic, but even after Youngblood I can't possibly take Aquaman seriously. Sometime Midas Peter David should know that some characters are best left to rot in obscurity. A painless, watery grave — and soon, please. (MS) 3

Batman: Legends of the Dark Knight 65 (DeMatteis & Staton) The Joker believes he has killed the Batman. DeMatteis brings a psychological point of view to many of his superhero stories, and it is particularly effective here, with two characters who rely on and define each other so absolutely: if the Batman is dead, what need is there for the Joker? Plenty of potential in this four-parter. (RHo) 8

<+> An account of one of Batman's early battles with the Joker, where Bat's lack of control nearly costs him his life. An intelligent script which gives a credible insight into the Joker's warped perspective; unfortunately the artwork has an overly busy look to it which hinders the narrative flow. (MG) 7

Batman: Legends of the Dark Knight Halloween Special: Madness (Loeb & Sale) The Mad Hatter kidnaps Gordon's young daughter; the vengeful Batman reminisces about the shattered innocence of his own childhood. A beautifully designed package, with, as always, excellent art from Sale. But the storyline is rather thin, and scarcely justifies the high cover price. (RHo) 6

A young Barbara Gordon gets a lesson in the realities of Gotham City when she's abducted by the Mad Hatter. This is a very impressive one-shot, featuring excellent artwork and scripting which combine to create a suitable Year One feel. While there is an abundance of characterisation, I'd still like to have seen more of the inner demons that motivate the Hatter. (MG) 9

Books of Magic 5 <+> (Rieber & Snejbjerg) A future evil Tim Hunter returns to corrupt his younger self — cue, you might think, for impenetrable time paradoxes — but no! The excellent Mr Reiber cares more for the character than for fanboy continuity, thank goodness. A star turn by the versatile Snejbjerg, meanwhile, puts paid to sniffy comments about Vertigo being all story and no art. (MS) 9

Books of Magic 6 <+> (Rieber & Gross) Tim acquires some mysterious new neighbours. After a rather slow start, this is fast becoming a very enjoyable series. Rieber seems to have a convincing grasp of English suburbia — surprising given that he's an American, and the villains (the Manticore and now "Martyn") are effectively macabre. Tim seems a little too saintly at times, especially since his background is portrayed as being so relentlessly deprived and miserable. (RHo) 7

Books of Magic 7 <+ -> (Rieber & Gross) Tim tries to take stock of his situation after his father is nearly burnt to death. One of the many things I enjoy about this title is the way that Tim's character has become fully rounded; he's developed a wry sense of humour that adds to his likeability — which in turn also makes him seem more realistic. (MG) 8

Hellblazer 83 <+> (Ennis & Dillon) Against all the odds, Constantine outwits the First of the Fallen once again. The departure of Ennis and Dillon seems a genuine cause for sadness; in the last two years, they've made this book so absolutely their own. Then again, I felt the same way when Jamie Delano left. The conclusion of this storyline is another fine read, with help for our hero coming from a most unexpected source. (RHo) 9

<-> A disappointing ending, and while the First of the Fallen's life history is intriguing, Ennis has left to many pieces unclear ... Where did the girl go? Why does Constantine shrug off his recent history? Ennis has deliberately avoided the cliche ending, but by leaving little resolved, its not enough. Dillon's art however is a little mundane — his Constantine is still too young, and the difference between the natural and the supernatural is almost non-existent. (RJJ) 6

Invisibles 2 <+ -> (Morrison & Yeowell) Stand up, anyone who doesn't love this title — oh, sit down, you Valiant fans! This is a fresh, foul-mouthed slice of retro-chic, full of unironic psychedelia, violent parochialism and, this issue, loons in hunting-gear stalking the homeless ... Effortlessly 'orrible, unequivocally essential. (MS) 10

Alone on the streets of London, a disbelieving Dane is shown glimpses of different realities. It's interesting to compare this with Books of Magic. Both bear all the Vertigo hallmarks and share a similar basic plot — a teenager from the real world is initiated into the supernatural. Yet Morrison's vision is absolutely and typically different, creating a marvellous new series which, on the evidence of the first two issues, really does live up to the hype. (RHo) 9

Moonshadow 2 <+> (DeMatteis & Muth) Moonshadow faces a tragic loss, and the flatulent Ira is proving scant comfort. A deceptively enchanting tale, which throws up its measure of gut-wrenching horror too, rendered with exquisite delicacy by Muth — a master. Would it be churlish to ask, then, why DeMatteis now fritters his time away on Spider-Man? (MS) 8

Moonshadow 3 <+ -> (DeMatteis & Muth) Things go from bad to worse for our hero as he's committed to a lunatic asylum and then freed by his best friend (who hates him!) and cajoled into performing an audacious crime. This series continues to be hugely entertaining while maintaining a dark undercurrent. Muth's art is nothing less than beautiful. (MG) 9

Sandman Mystery Theatre Annual 1 (various) A jam session by Matt Wagner and Steven T Seagle on a word processor and some of the great realist artists, including Lloyd and Ross create a less-than-inspired Wesley Dodds story of obligation, crime and detection that wouldn't deserve an annual if it wasn't for the eye-popping range of artists. (RJJ) 7

Shade 53 (Milligan & Phillips) Shade has trouble with a former girlfriend on Meta while Lenny shares some unusual bonding experiences with her daughter. Not having read this title for a while, I found that the most striking thing was the sense of never having been away — like meeting up with old friends. Milligan's writing is as sparkling as ever, although Chris Bachalo is sorely missed. (RHo) 8

Shadows Fall 1 (Rieber & Van Fleet) Separated from its owner, Warren Gale's shadow has driven thousands to suicide. Now Gale's orderly world is beginning to fall apart. This is a grim tale of the modern urban nightmare. Van Fleet's wonderful painting illuminates the black heart of a city of relentless decay and broken dreams, grey monotony and minor horror. Excellent stuff, with a creepy Eraserhead feel. (RHo) 9

A shadow stalks a city, inciting despair in its victims by showing them the bleak reality of their lives. An utterly compelling and chilling storyline married with superbly atmospheric photo-real artwork produces one of the best comics I've read in a while. For me, it passed the test of an outstanding piece of work, in that it stays in your mind long after having read it. (MG) 10

Swamp Thing 147 (Millar & Hester) Swampy is caught by his pursuers in Amsterdam, but flower-power wins out. Literally. Hester remains tantalising erratic, but he too is on an upward curve. Nasty, but ambitious. (MS) 8

Swamp Thing 148 (Millar & Hester) A desperate Swamp Thing arrives in the Black Forest, where a long dormant villain has regained his power. High on spooky atmosphere, low on action, this issue is clearly a scene-setter for confrontations to come. A "town possessed by evil forces" is an old but effective idea, and the creators do enough to convince me to stay away from Freiburg. (RHo) 7

Wonder Woman 0 (Loebs & Deodato Jr) Mike Deodato Jr is destined for big things, and providing Image don't persuade him to join them by waving large amounts of money in his face, he may just attain them. Not so much a zero issue, more a scene setter for the New Wonder Woman storyline. Dramatic, in-your-face stuff with a lot of potential. Diana has never, ever, looked better. (PH) 7

MARVEL COMICS

Clandestine 2 <+> (Davis w/Farmer) This issue features a colourist with a grasp of the spectrum and the beginnings of a good story — with twists and subplots that seem to be missing from other Marvel comics. Definitely a huge improvement in appearance over the first issue and an intriguing appearance by the Silver Surfer. (PH) 8

With a much better colour scheme this issue, Davis explores similar themes to Grant Morrison's Invisibles, but in a much more open, honest and superheroic way. Challenging cliches, Davis brings back fun and frolics into an industry tired by the grim and the gritty. (RJJ) 9

Generation X 1 (Lobdell & Bachalo) This is everything books such as Excalibur, X-Factor and X-Force should be, dealing with the fact that these are predominantly children with superhuman powers and the school where they learn to handle the powers effectively. Hang on a minute, isn't that what X-Men was supposed to be about? Superb visuals, intelligent and lively script, a guaranteed winner as long as the creative team stays in place. Even the chromium cover was nice(PH)9

Hellstorm 18 (Ellis & Manco) A truly original idea ... an angel possessing a man and needing the Son of Satan to exorcise the possessor. Twisting a traditional tale on its head, Ellis shows us a convincing other side to the Holy War. As this book heads for cancellation, Ellis seems to have free reign and ignores the irrelevant Comics Code on the cover. Manco's art — dark, splattering and looking like David Lloyd crossed with Jae Lee — takes on an abrasive interpretation of Ellis' intentions and provides a very good comic indeed. (RJJ) 9

Hellstorm 20 <+> (Ellis & Manco) Satanna has plans for her brother, Jaine is trapped by angels in San Francisco and Hellstorm is going to be ... a father? So disappointing that Marvel has cancelled this book. Somehow I can't see Ellis bringing the same enthusiasm to Excalibur. He and Manco have created a horror book which holds its own with the Vertigo titles, and it's hard not to feel a little resentful towards Marvel for being so very short-sighted. (RHo) 7

The Last Temptation of Alice 2 (Gaiman & Zulli) This Sandman-for-kids story doesn't care whether it uses cliches or not, and Zulli's fast style sets a fast-paced suburban horror story that reads like a junior Stephen King novel. While there is not much to sink your teeth into, the merging of song and comics provides an interesting, offbeat flavour. (RJJ) 6

Punisher/Batman: Deadly Knights (Dixon & Romita Jr. + Janson) A post-modern approach, perhaps? A tense psycho-drama? Hardly. In fact, it's just the kinda predictable, self-congratulatory schlock-fest you'd expect — if done with just enough style and lashings of chunky, guns-blazing artwork to make it pretty enjoyable in a True Lies kind of a way. Definitely a "no-brainer", though. (MS) 6

Punisher 2099 #22 (Mills + Skinner & Coleby) The huge improvement on the first 20 issues continues. The story is still so formulaic that you could easily of had Frank Castle jumping into a time machine and donning new duds, but Coleby's artwork brings a sense of mystery and darkness that Tom Morgan, the former artist, could never achieve. Shame about Coleby's faces, though. (PH) 6

Uncanny X-Men 318 <+ -> (Lobdell & Cruz + Green) I was hoping that the X-Men titles would continue to distance themselves from the Jim Lee-styled artwork and develop their own personality again. Sadly, Roger Cruz is just another Lee clone and all his pencils offer us is a step backwards. Nice story of how Jubilee comes to terms with not being an X-Man any more: not a punch is thrown, and there's no unnecessary subplot baggage. Scott Lobdell is an excellent replacement for Chris Claremont, and it's a shame he doesn't write for both of the main titles. (PH) 8

INDEPENDENTS

Aliens: Stronghold 4 <+ -> (Dark Horse; Arcudi & Mahnke) Aliens and Synthetics clash in an orgy of mass destruction at the climax of this storyline. Although this has undoubtedly been an enjoyable mini-series, there is a feeling that these Alien stories are beginning to get somewhat formulaic; maybe its a constraint of the material but it would be nice to see something radical done with the entire concept. (MG) 7

Ashley Dust 1 (Knightpress; McCollum) Ashley Dust, sorceress and immortal red-headed cyborg, has a secret garden on the borders of Hell, where she hides the souls of dead men she likes — like Lovecraft and R E Howard. A demanding read that flouts every storytelling rule but is astonishingly imaginative and rewarding. (FPB) 9

Blood and Kisses 0 (FantaCo; Jones) A woman in black dances before an angel, while on Earth a lonely girl abandoned by her drug-addict girlfriend is lured into a sort of evil-church nightclub. A Gothic, moody and beautifully drawn teaser for a three-part mini-series, and as intriguing as anything I have ever read. (FPB) 9

Dominique 1 (Caliber; Moore & Gonzales + Bishop) Even grifters have children. What happens to them when they grow up? Well, Dominique Sinclair goes to work as an insurance detective and repo woman ... This is good genre fun, like one of the better Hollywood grifter movies, with engaging characters, plenty of tension and fine artwork. (FPB) 7

Firearm 11 (Ultraverse; Robinson & Erskine) A weaker tale by Robinson is ameliorated by Erskine's heavy, solid and yet intricate artwork. Cliches abound, and more computer gobbledegook and stilted dialogue make for quite a letdown. The expensive premiere flip-book stories provide little — unless you are a complete Ultraverse fanatic. (RJJ) 6

Freeflight 3 (Thinkblots; Dringenberg & various) Dringenberg's Pilot Error is a fun SF two-pager that looks as if it was ripped out of Future Shocks. Other worthwhile stories in this anthology include a Cerebus parody, with a faithful twist on Dave Sim's art and a story of childhood horror that has its impact enhanced by its cartoony culture. (RJJ) 7

Hellshock 1 (Image; J. Lee) Image goes avant-garde?! Yes, really — even if it reads "Miller" through it like a stick of rock. There has to be a catch, right? Of course! A laughable 14 pages (!) of story, padded out by the usual assortment of pin-ups and promotional bumph. Nice try, but no cigar. (MS) 7

A short Hellshock story sees Lee pasting the Vertigo artist Peter Snejbjerg's style on his own and creating a successful blend. While little is revealed here, as in most Image first issues, Lee has created an intriguing premise, even if we aren't quite sure what it is yet. Something to do with religion, probably. (RJJ) 7

Hepcats 12 (Double Diamond; Wagner) Wagner portrays the horror of the nightmare well with his detailed and unreal artwork, combining memories of Erica's father with a prelude to her later path of suicide. This issue sets up a new chapter of Snowblind as we learn of her story before she met the rest of the Hepcats crowd. Moving, entertaining and absolutely unmissable. (RJJ) 10

Incredible Science Fiction 9 (EC/Cochran; various) An extraordinary set of post-Code time-and-space-faring stories, superbly illustrated, maintaining the EC tradition of social critique but with such crushingly despairing conclusions that you can tell the creators knew the good times were over. A remarkable historical document. (MK) 10

Jack Kirby's Heroes and Villain (Pure Imagination; Kirby & various) Once upon a time there was a King who drew sketches of many of his characters for his Queen; then along came Theakston with an army of artists and had them inked and published, but meanwhile the King had left. Remarkable both for some outstanding finishing jobs and for the enormous variety and individuality of the drawings; no Kirby character duplicates any other. (FPB) 10

Kane 4 (Dancing Elephant; Grist) Powerful work by Grist, showing how minimalist art and heavy black can portray power without hundreds of speed lines. The return of Burglar Bill is a welcome surprise for all Grist fans and his stories of crime and crime detection don't shy away from the more brutal truths. (RJJ) 9

Mantra 13 (Ultraverse; Barr & Armstrong + Minor) <+ +> Starting with an ancient and foolish platitude of warring separate male and female societies, Barr proceeds to create a series of affecting situations that leave more questions than answers. An involving and emotional story that is graced by vastly improved artwork. (FPB) 7

Paradox 2 (Dark Visions; various) A striking cover by no less than Boris Vallejo proves the ambition of this outfit; the contents — centred on the ongoing war between Hell and Heaven — veer from the excellent to the painfully amateurish. Overall, a very interesting book. (FPB) 7

Sludge 8 <+> (Ultraverse; Gerber & Lopresti + Martin) As the gang's rage and fear grows, and as the city and the media try to deal with more and more horrible side effects of the popularity of Zuke, so too Sludge's anguish and confusion rise like a tide. Gerber and Lopresti's grand design is coming together with real emotional power. (FPB) 8

Spawn 24 <+ +> (Image; McFarlane & Capullo) With Capullo having a greater input than he is credited for, Spawn gets a grittier and sketchier feel to it this month. McFarlane still overwrites, but his characterisation is passable and the book follows a more logical progression than it has done in the past. Its flaw, however, is that the book has no feel of direction, no substance — as if Spawn in the end is just an "image". (RJJ) 6

Strange Attractions 6 (RetroGrafix; Cohen + Sherman & Cohen) A strong and genuinely frightening situation (the incarcerated heroine is waiting to have her mind erased) goes oddly but intriguingly with the book's thrust, an Americomics-like "girl pirates in space" affair. Even if you don't like that stuff, this title might be a pleasant surprise. (FPB) 7

Streak of Chalk (NBM; Prado) Lavish and highly ambitious, this extraordinary Spanish comic is a serious eye-opener. An experimental story about the relations between two strangers on a remote island, it glows with the richest, subtlest artwork you've ever seen. If the translation wasn't so stilted, this might have been an unheralded classic. (MS) 8

Thieves and Kings 1 (I Box Publishing; M'Oak) Unable to choose between a son and a daughter as his successor, a king hides his crown in a forest and sends them to find it: a thief gets there first — and thereby hangs a tale — quite a few tales, in fact ... This book is gentle, intelligent, often imaginative — and very attractive. (FPB) 8

A fantasy that mixes comic-books and text illustration from the pen of one of Cerebus's regular letter hacks. M'Oak goes through the setting-the-world-and-its-history-up bit, but manages to create some interesting fantasy concepts and characters. A sketchy style contrasts detailed backgrounds with cartoony, even manga-like main characters, M'Oak has definitely been reading his Understanding Comics! The trouble is that Thieves and Kings is too short! (RJJ) 8

Tyrant 1 (Spiderbaby Grafix; Bissette) A phenomenally well written and drawn comic. Tyrant aims to get behind the minds of the creatures portrayed but does so in a third person, descriptive style. A comic without speech balloons ... is that legal? Bissette's detail is impeccable and there's not a thing I can fault this book for. (RJJ) 10

Way Out Strips 3 (Fantagraphics; Swain) Carol Swain is a modern Puritan, with a baffling inability to enjoy anything. Nevertheless these three stories — the troubled friendship of two adolescents in Yorkshire, a bad joke in Camden and a beautifully worked-out bit of cruelty with a Russian icon — are excellently conceived. (FPB) 9

Wild Life 2 (Fantagraphics; Kuper) Kuper is perhaps the best of the autobiographically oriented, alternative creators, in that he succeeds brilliantly in presenting his personal travails in a way that we can all sympathise with and relate to, while his Zap-influenced,

Zone Continuum 1 (Caliber; Zick) Bruce Zick, murderer of Thor, proves himself a remarkably able writer and artist with this story of ancient and immortal enemies duelling on the rooftops of New York. Basically a complicated superhero story, but an interesting and very well rendered one.(FPB)7

UK TITLES

Mr Punch (VG Graphics; Gaiman & McKean) If you believe the hype then this is the best thing since the creation of the comics medium. In truth, it is a cluttered story, with hard-to-follow pictures and leaves you wondering why you bothered. This rites-of-passage story about a young boy and his friendship with a Punch and Judy man is basically bland, and instead of caring for the characters you just want to find out what it's about. Dave McKean's artwork offers little to the unconverted who might look at this in the local book shop. (PH) 5

McKean moves from his expected painted style to portray the story using photographs and the broad strokes of his Cages books. Together Gaiman and McKean have produced a very disturbing and alarming book, and I just wonder what the Americans will make of it all. The story of Mr Punch is matched with the family life of a young child, leaving the reader to draw specific deductions. Most enjoyable. (RJJ) 10

SMALL PRESS

Battleground 6 (£1.75 from Andy Brewer, 58 Kingsley Court, Salford M5 4EZ) <+ -> Since the next issue switches over to coverage of indie/alternative comics only, this one's absolutely packed with all the mainstream articles on file - together with the most combative and stimulating lettercol around. Eyestrain and varied entertainment are guaranteed. (MK) 9

<-> I'm not convinced that the new cleaner, whiter-than-white Battleground actually works. Gone are the rough edges, but also missing is the feeling that you're reading a fanzine. Interesting mix of mainstream and indie comics, lots of familiar names and a rather bland letters column. (PH) 6

Bypass 3 (£1.20 from Bypass, Box B, 111 Magdalen Rd, Oxford OX4) Two hundred or so tough, intelligent reviews of self-published zines and comics, presented with imaginatively-used graphics and typefaces which manage not to obscure the text or sense. A very useful package with a left-wing bias, particularly recommended for those who think John Major is a good idea ... (MK) 8

Jack Kirby Quarterly 2 (£1.15 from Chris Harper, 25 Napier Drive, Tipton, W Midlands DY4 7NW) The numerous critical discussions of Kirby projects are interesting, but it's the brief — possibly last — interview with the man and the several pages of previously unpublished art that makes this essential reading for those interested in the history of comic-books. (MK) 7

Posse 8 (£2.50 from Entrepotdok 71A, 1018 AD Amsterdam, Netherlands) A powerful and professional book of experimental comics, placing unknowns alongside the likes of Hugo Pratt, Joost Swarte and the Inkling crew. Despite some Flemish content, I'd recommend it to anyone who misses Raw. (MK) 7

Rogue's Warriors 1 (House Atreides; £1.60; Smithson & Dixon) I have this rabbit that eats anything: if you leave a comic on the floor she'll eat it. She doesn't differentiate, it can be a Showcase 4 or a X-Men, she'll just eat it. This stayed on the floor for three days and she didn't touch it. Need I say more? (PH) 1

Tales from Sleaze Castle 4 <+> (Gratuitous Bunny Comix; Wiley) All things come to an end, and for once, we are given a lot of answers. This book has a rare completeness to it and the SF Love & Rockets is content to concentrate on the mundane rather than go for overkill. The ending is particularly moving as a year is condensed into a few panels. The book is only slightly spoilt by an exposed nipple ... I mean, really! Not in Sleaze Castle, please! (RJJ) 9

Tales of Skittle-Sharpers and Thimble-Riggers 5 (£1.50 from To Yield Press, 32 Cemetary Ave, Sheffield, S. Yorks S11 8NT) Final issue, in which the whole story turns out to have been a convoluted dream. This is not a cop-out: read the whole series to savour its disturbing exposition of the depth of confusion and craziness to which the simple inability to communicate can drive an individual. It's classic stuff. (MK) 10

The Body Shop (Carstairs & Bamforth; £1 and an A4 SAE from Room E44C, Eddie Coleman Court, Belvedere Rd, Salford, M5 5HH) Three cruelly humorous tales of futuristic crime and punishment. A remarkably self-assured debut, neatly written and impressively drawn by two obvious talents. It;s rather too strong for my taste, but certain nevertheless to please many people. (FPB) 7

Vogarth 2 (£1.95 from Vogarth Comix, PO Box 260, Preston, Lancs PR1 8JU) Inside a Hunt Emerson cover, Astro Punk and Katika take on the ranks of Galactic bureaucrats in the struggle for a sickness benefit payment ... there are unexpected touches of realism about the new-look Vogarth, adding extra substance to the usual wild, irreverent fun of it. I'd regard this as a very cool accessory to any party! (MK) 8

Exit DeFalco?

RUMOURS are circulating that Marvel held a three hour editorial meeting on Wednesday 12th October, at which an ongoing rumour was given substance.

Despite being allegedly offered the role of publisher, Marvel's editor-in-chief, Tom DeFalco, has resigned.

With him writing four books a month and said to be on a very high page rate, DeFalco as a freelance scripter would still be earning double the British Prime Minister's reported salary.

Quite how readily his scripts will be accepted when he is no longer in charge is another matter...

Filling Tom's shoes

IN THE past we've hinted at who might replace Tom DeFalco, at the helm of Marvel, if he ever left. The answer now appears to be...

NOBODY!

Allegedly the powers that be wish to give editorial autonomy to each of the group editors.

- Bob Harras will continue to be responsible for the company's biggest line, the X-Men family.
- Bobbie Chase will edit Marvel's horror line of titles as well as The Hulk, The Punisher and taking over the 2099 line of titles from Joey Cavalieri.
- Bob Budiansky will edit the Spider-Man family of titles.
- Mark Gruenwald, one-time favourite to fill DeFalco's shows, will edit the rest of the Marvel superhero line.
- Carl Potts will take overall control of Marvel's humour and licensed comics, and possibly any special projects.

Insiders have already implied this move may be a further push towards selling off certain sections of the Marvel universe, with the publishing side no longer being the company's biggest money-maker.

Outside of the lack of overall cohesion with various new editorial chiefs across the entire Marvel line, this move will certainly answer a lot of criticisms of some Marvel editors who are said to be only traffic managers with no sense of vision or editing skills. Being put in charge will give them all the opportunity to prove their worth.

Stan Lee once commented to our beloved editor that he felt their should be only one chief, to take the blame or the praise and to give a line one direction. So what happens with so many chiefs if they disagree over the next multi-crossover? Who would dare suggest such a thing anyway? And who will be the editorial voice when talking to management?

The Canny X-Men

DC COMICS didn't achieve the desired number one slot with its issue zero month, although the books did sell a lot more than they have done for many years.

Recently Marvel hedged its bets over increasing profits in its X-books $1.95 vs $1.50 editions experiment. Tipping the odds in favour of the $1.95 deluxe editions, it shipped them two weeks ahead of the regular newsprint edition, thus "proving" through sales levels that people preferred the flashier (and more profitable) version.

Now, with the X-Men family about to undergo massive changes and a range of new titles from January 1995, a number of people have speculated as to why all this trouble is being taken, renaming and renumbering them for four months only.

Perhaps the answer is that retailers will have ordered the fourth issues of the new titles before they see what sales are like on the first issues. If it's a failure, it doesn't matter, it's too late to change anything, and retailers will next be ordering the old "favourite" titles. Won't get fooled again?

Surely, as we speculated last issue, shareholders would have been far happier if Marvel had effectively doubled its most popular line by continuing these easy jump-on low-numbered titles and slowly reintroduced all of the original titles with the full fanfare and promotion of brand-new first issues.

Of course, if the x-periment succeeds, all the mini-series could still be revived as ongoing alternate universe titles.

But then, how far would even Marvel stretch a good idea?

WildB.O.N.E.s

JIM LEE, supposedly on a sabbatical from the comics industry, has certainly been busy recently.

Apart from a number of new covers for Image trade paperback releases and his recent work on Savage Dragon, Lee is drawing a pin-up poster for Jeff Smith's Bone, featuring Fone Bone as a member of WildC.A.T.s.

Smith, on the other hand, only produces 6 issues of Bone a year and is always prepared to do "guest" spots for people (a Madman trading card for Michael Allred and a Shadowhawk card for Jim Valentino, a Hero Illustrated cover and a Bone adventure for Disney, etc). To reciprocate for Jim Lee's drawing, Smith is to draw the cover for the soon to be released WildC.A.T.s Adventures Sourcebook.

Big in America

AFTER poring over the pages of America's trade papers and glossy fan magazines, one of our ITMites has come up with a top ten of the hottest speculative comics in the United States.

Despite the speculation boom having all but disappeared over the last two years, the following titles have been earning back issue dealers a premium over the last three months. How many have been

● Gen-13 #1 from Image has been hot since its June release and the Americans are maintaining that it had a smaller than average print run. It had, in fact, a print run of 130,000 and further to this, our Massachusettes ITMite maintained that most US dealers had a healthy back stock of all Gen-13 titles. But issue 1 is still selling for around $25.

● Amazing Spider-Man #149 could well be the hottest book for a number of years. If rumours are to be believed, this issue featured the last appearance of Peter Parker and the first appearance of the clone who has been Spider-Man for the last 17 years! US value: $125.00.

● Lady Death Swimsuit Special #1 is an anomaly in itself. Rarely does a title of this type actually reach the dizzy heights of a hot comic, but the buxom Lady Death has taken fandom by storm and with a print run of a little under 40,000 has touched prices of $15 and over.

● Vengeance of Vampirella #1 is a highly sought-after item in the States (yet in this country, #2 appears to be the hot one). As the title continues to grow in sales, the earlier issues are selling upwards of $10 each.

● Lady Death #1 with a print run of 50,000, a chromium cover and a growing fan following has been seen for as high as $20. Chaos Comics has really taken the back-issue boxes by storm with this title and the Evil Ernie mini-series.

● Shi: The Way of the Warrior #1 is another comic with the "Babe with an attitude" theme and after a quiet start the book is the verge of breaking into distributors' top 50s. The first issue of this 50,000 print run title is selling for about $15 at most US dealers tables.

● Deathblow #5A is another Image title that caused retailer dissent with its alternative one-different-cover-in-five format. Despite the actual Deathblow title being a slow mover in back issue boxes, this edition, the second of the five from Image — and with a Portacio cover — is selling in excess of $10.

● Nova Hunter #1 from new SF publishers Ryal Comics had a print run of 22,000. It is the story of a gutsy Ripley-like warrior woman (natch) fighting her way through space.

The first issue is about $10 where available and Ryal is sending the fist issue back for a second printing.

● Drama #1 is a prestige format comic featuring the character Dawn from the cult success Cry for Dawn title. Artist Joseph Michael Linsner has become a fan sensation with his cross between the lurid and cheesecake pictures of beautiful women, and this completes an almost clean sweep by the "babes with attitude" in the US hot ten.

Drama is actually a story that Linsner drew three years before the Cry For Dawn series and with a print run of just under 20,000, a price tag of $15 seems like value for money.

● The last title in the American hot top ten is possibly the most controversial, because the artist of this book has fallen very much out of favour with dealers in the states.

Prophet #4A is the first Stephen Platt art for Image comics and this particular issue was the first of the alternative cover editions.

Platt has caused a great deal of consternation through missing deadlines and reportedly bad mouthing his new and former employers. This has led to Image taking out adverts in trade catalogues Previews and Advance Comics actively chastising the artist in public.

The fans, however, love the artist's work and are still clammering for his Prophet and his work on Moon Knight for Marvel.

Expect an previously unpublished Platt Moon Knight story to appear in Marvel Comics Presents within the next few months. This is one book that never fails to be under-ordered.

What is surprising in this top ten is the absence of titles you would expect to see in there. No issues of Marvels, Daredevil, X-Men, Green Lantern, Superman or anything from McFarlane or any of the top Image creators.

Our US ITMite maintains that the speculator market in America has a life span of no more than four or five months, and it is not long before a hot book's supply dramatically outweighs its demand.

Like a bad penny

THE RUMOUR which refuses to lay down and die has resurfaced yet again. Is Image about to split up and are the founders about to form their own companies?

"No way, dude," says Image. But that is expected of them. "Yes, most definitely," say comic watchers with what they believe to be good reason.

Over the last six months, all of the Image co-founders have been flaunting their new companies. Wildstorm is Jim Lee's company, High Brow Entertainment — Erik Larsen, Top Cow — Marc Silvestri, Extreme — Rob Liefeld, Shadowline — Jim Valentino.

Now Rob Liefeld has launched Maximum Press, which he claims is so that he can do material not suited to Image standard fayre. "No superheroes at Maximum Press," says Rob.

"We want to do something with science fiction, mystery and fantasy, something different than [sic] Image," echoes Eric Stephenson (Liefeld's good friend, co-Youngblood writer and partner at Maximum Press).

Pardon us if we've missed something, but do books like The Maxx fit into normal Image criteria? Regardless of this, why does Liefeld have to publish this work under a different banner? Possibly for the same reason he went to Malibu to publish Youngblood, to test the waters?

Fuelling the split rumour even more, Jim Lee has allegedly been talking to both Marvel and DC about working on team-ups and publishing deals, and this is despite Wildstorm being second only to Todd McFarlane in Image sales.

And finally, Jim Valentino has come in for some "serious verbals" from his partners about the Shadowhawk creator's dismissal of long time collaborator Chance Wolf. Apparently Wolf has been ghosting for Valentino on most issues that have been credited as Valentino's pencils with Wolf's inks. Eagle eyed fans spotted that certain issues of Shadowhawk looked a lot better than others and not content with staying in Valentino's shadow (if you'll pardon the pun) Wolf decided to tell the world.

Shadowline Studios are on the look out for an artist who can drawn just like Jim Valentino. It offers good rates of pay but don't expect much recognition.

The other X-Men

CULT TV series The X Files, currently being shown on BBC2 on Mondays at 9.30pm, is being licensed as a comic book by Topps in January.

Topps hopes the comic, which will tell new stories of agents "Spooky" Mulder and Dana Scully and their fight to prove the existence of extra-terrestrials to their FBI bosses, will achieve the same success as a comic as the series has on US television.

The X Files is the most successful SF based TV show in the States since the Star Trek family of shows.

New Talent Showcase

MOVE OVER Todd McFarlane, Jim Lee, Stephen Platt and Joe Quesada. Movers and Shakers has an irregular spotlight on the newest and hottest talent in comics, and these are reportedly the guys we should be watching at the moment;

● Anthony Chen, a relative unknown unless you read DC's Showcase '94 #10 which featured the 18 year old's debut in comics. His Black Condor strip impressed Rob Liefeld so much that he offered the artist a job when meeting him at this year's San Diego convention.

● Joe Bennett has impressed editors so much at Marvel that one of Tom DeFalco's (alledgedly) last jobs at Marvel was to calm all the editors down. There were reported to be internal squabbles as all the group editors attempted to poach Bennett to work on their books. Look out for Bennett's unusual style in the pages of the ailing (and soon to be cancelled) Ravage 2099.

● Stuart Immonen has been around a long time, but due to his work on the poor-selling Legion of Super-Heroes, has not garnered the attention his peers have.

Immonen is a dynamic Adam Hughes clone and his work is to grace the pages of Adventures of Superman once Barry Kitson has concluded his run. One UK retailer said of Immonen "He makes looking at even the worst comic books a pleasure." High praise indeed.

● Humberto Ramos, like Stuart Immonen, is an artist who has developed his own style after comparisons to other higher profile artists. Ramos has been compared to Arthur Adams and anyone seeing his work for DC will spot the similarity. The Puerto Rican is due to get his own series at DC, possibly Superboy, this is where he should establish himself with the fans.

IN THESE days of finite resources, the comic industry should be making a maximum effort towards conservation and efficiency.

For this reason, the publishers of the Comic Book Price Guide for Great Britain should surely have edited Christopher Lee's foreward to save on typesetting.

The essence of Mr Lee's sparkling essay could have been conveyed in far fewer words. For instance: "I do not read comic books and I have never read comic books. However, I became aware that people read comics during my time in Hollywood. When I returned to London I noticed that several comic shops had opened. If you must waste your money on comics, a price guide will help you. I can say, without fear of contradiction, that what you are now holding is a comic book price guide. Can I have my money now?"

Richard Fairbrother
128 Bradford Rd, Huddersfield

I HAVE a criticism regarding your comic reviews section. Every month I read your Marvel reviews and there is always at least one X-book, one Spider book and one Hulk review.

I understand these are the most popular titles, but surely they can be sacrificed on occasions to make way for others which are hardly ever reviewed due to limited space.

No title has a divine right to appear permanently on your reviews pages, because as hard as it is for some people to believe, not everybody bothers to pretend to be obsessed by overhyped crap (ie X-Men).

If you must monitor the performance of a comic then please do it every three or four months and not every issue, thanks.

Perhaps our panel would review titles other than the select few you mention, Richard. But unfortunately, unlike in the music, book and movie industries, none of the major comics publishers consider us worthy of review copies. Our team have to buy their own comics for review and very few of them are going to buy comics they don't normally enjoy just to tell everyone else how bad it is.

Sad how little our American cousins (except Dark Horse and Valiant) care for our share of the market, isn't it?

Paul Aaman, Keswick Drive

DOES anyone remember the days when a comic became worth money because there weren't enough copies to supply demand, or because Neal Adams or Jim Steranko drew them and everybody wanted a copy?

Last week I attempted to buy WildC.A.T.s #10 or #11, the first Chris Claremont issue. I discovered that there was a special Whilce Portacio cover on one-in-four of all comics shipped. I also discovered, that despite there having been over 400,000 copies of this comic — ie. 100,000 copies of the special cover — which is twice the print run of New Warriors or Aquaman — I was still expected to pay in excess of £5 for it. I did not have to pay £5 for a copy of Aquaman #2 and that is a key issue. I don't even have to pay that much for Neal Adams' comics any more, having completed my Deadman Strange Adventures collection during the same week and paying £3.50 for a fn+ copy of #215 (dated 1971).

Is there a moral here?

An ITMite, Tyne & Wear

IN A recent Comics International, we hear that Slave Labor publisher Dan Vado's staff has beem chastising Phil Hall and that Phil Elliot wrote in to complain about reports that Dan Vado was closing Slave Labor.

As the originator of those reports, I would like to say that they came from the keyboard of Vado himself.

Depressed with recent sales figures, he wrote about his apathy about the comics market and didn't want to be in the comics business just to publish Milk & Cheese.

He concluded with the comment that he was seriously considering closing Slave Labor.

These were not "throwaway" remarks, but came as the conclusion to a thought-out post on the Usenet computer newsgroup rec.arts.comics.misc. and I reported them to Comics International as I do a number of news items.

So, Dan Vado, be careful what you type to an audience of millions... someone may believe you.

CONGRATULATIONS on the paper. Despite having all but given up buying comics (a sudden overwhelming interest in long and expensive holidays) I still buy Comics International — mostly for the gossip and the letters.

Alf Blatch, Cheriton

I READ the comment by Alan Dempsey and many others. I don't know why, but a good 90% of people who write in about Todd McFarlane/Spawn only seem to see the bad side. I think they're just jealous.

Even though you get people who buy more than one copy, or just buy for the future, you also get those who just love the comics they buy.

Spawn, for instance, is brilliant or it is to me. I can't wait to get my hands on the next issue. Not just to bag and board, but to read and reread and to totally absorb it.

When it comes to the point of late shipping comics, I don't care as long as when it does hit the shelf it's full of excitement/action/drama, and not just dribble that other comic companies give out just so they can say "we never miss a deadline".

Patrick Lamb, 66 Kingfield Rd, Sheffield, S.Yorks

I AM writing in response to your wishes for more positive letters about comics.

I love comics. Both as a form of entertainment and on a good day as "art". This began, for me, aged 13, when, whilst looking for something to read at school, I found somebody's collection of the Miller Daredevil's.

There wasn't a drum roll, but there might as well have been. I was utterly caught up in the stories, whirled away! Many years later I am now trying to enter the profession myself. I want to produce the same thrill in others, that those stories gave me.

All this blathering and bleating about how most comics published today are bollocks is rather galling. It is true, yes, but whingeing is not going to make them all good, all of a sudden. Leave the sh*t on the shelf, go and use the money to buy paper and a pentel and draw something good!

Study the work of Miller, Eisner, Wrightson, Frazetta, Kozima, Lloyd, Yeowell and the hundreds of other good artists. Learn to discern good art from bad, distill the good elements and drink one teaspoon before bedtime. Fill the shelves with quality, based on beautiful, original styles, and wonderful stories. Don't just take some bad idea from that godforsaken television thing, and turn it into an even worse comic. Imagine your own tapestries!

Please, everybody who is involved with comics, strive for excellence! Work your bollocks off to produce brilliant work.

I agree with David Lloyd in his article in Comics Forum that we must strive for higher standards.

Robin Dangerfield, 17 Woodcote Ave, Poddington

I HAVE just returned from this year's UKCAC and felt compelled to write. I have been a comic fan for about ten years and in that time I have attended a number of conventions in Europe and the United States. To be fair, there is little to compare UKCAC with the likes of San Diego, New York or Barcelona. I should imagine that a convention in Peru would compare with UKCAC.

My real problem with my fifth UKCAC is that it isn't really a convention, it's a big comic mart with some guests and a bar.

Was it just me or did the representatives of Marvel and DC look like they would rather have gone for a tooth extraction than wander (and a short wander it is) around the convention site?

I got the impression that neither of these mammoth corporations were being anything more than rudimentary sycophants.

A possible solution to improving this increasing debacle of British inefficiency, other than ask the organisers to take an early (late) bath, would be to actually stage a comics convention. An appreciation of comicbooks from all over the world and therefore negating the need to pander to the Americans. I mean, after all, only Marvel and DC deemed us worthy of a visit. Where were Image, Dark Horse, Valiant or any of the smaller publishers who get great exposure in this country?

Are we really such a sad and pathetic country that the Americans can pillage our writers, p*ss on our retailers and then give us a giant two-fingered salute come our conventions season (ha?). I would have liked nothing better than to follow the Comics International code of comment and write a sparkling review of UKCAC, but...

So, we comic fans, the majority, the ones who normally always stay quiet, the ones who don't get involved in the sometimes petty antics of either the small press or the professional press, those of us who may read the X-Men or Spawn, those of us who look forward to a rivettingly good UKCAC every year and are forever disappointed by it. We demand that we get something more for our twenty quid, our hotel, travelling expenses and our time.

Mike Kidson, 40 Marmion Rd, Liverpool L17

CONCERNING your ITMite's comments on the cover of Wonder Woman #196 (Movers & Shakers, Comics International #47): why stop there?!

A quick shuffle through adjacent issues produced the following covers: #188 (Diana chained to a wall, dressed in provocatively ripped mini-dress), #203 (mini-skirted supporting character Cathy Perkins, bound and gagged, complete with delightful masthead copy proclaiming "Women's Lib Issue!"), #205 (WW spread-eagled astride a distinctly phallic-looking torpedo) and issue 207 (WW and Queen Hippolyta tied back to back and gagged).

And let us not forget the classic pair of #199 (Diana shackled between two walls watched by a half-naked hooded axeman) and #200 (Diana bound and gagged on a table, menaced by a woman with a scalpel), unimaginatively described by the Price Guide as Jeff Jones covers.

Wake up, chaps! There are hot back issues waiting to be discovered here! You might even end up introducing eager fans to some superlative Mike Sekowsky artwork, although I suppose that's beside the point really...

But it would be fitting to retain that All Star 8/origin credit for issue 196. After all, it was WW creator William Moulton Marston who quite deliberately introduced all this bondage/loving submission/tight hot pants stuff in the first place, thereby ensuring enough adolescent interest for the title to survive over 50 years.

Such a shame that he made it so integral a part of the WW concept that no-one's really had a clue how to handle it since 1955, when the Comics Code Authority insisted on a bit of decency...

PREFERRED READER . LIFETIME & FOUNDER MEMBER DISCOUNTS STILL APPLY.

Dear Valued Customer

Welcome to the latest Stateside Comics catalogue.

As you can see from the above, we have introduced NEW DISCOUNT PLANS and reviewed and REDUCED many of the old Stateside PRICES that were felt to be overstated for today's market.
As you know Stateside Comics is the LARGEST BACK ISSUE DEALER IN EUROPE, with its vast selection of Gold, Silver and Modern comics and the MANY FAMOUS DISCOUNT PLANS designed to fit all your needs.

What you may not have known is that before the Stateside satellite concessions within the Virgin Megastores and Hamleys, there was STATESIDE AT BARNET. The corporate office of Stateside boasts the LARGEST SELECTION OF BACK ISSUES to be found anywhere in Europe and a SUPERB RE-FITTED NEW COMICS STORE with its own separate location (next door) where you will find: TRADING CARDS, T-SHIRTS, GRAPHIC NOVELS, TRADE PAPERBACKS and an unrivalled selection of NEW IMPORTED COMICS arriving twice weekly from our friends in America.

We are aware, that in the short term the closure of the satellite stores may cause you some difficulty, although of course there will be NO CHANGE TO OUR MAIL ORDER SERVICE other than a much FASTER TURN AROUND OF ORDERS due to all stock now being under one roof. We will also have another 100,000 plus comics for you to choose from.

The Comic Book Corporation have decided to HONOUR ALL TRADE VOUCHERS AND CREDIT NOTES that were still outstanding with Stateside Comics PLC, under the following conditions;

If you wish to utilise a Stateside Comics PLC trade voucher or Credit note, we would ask you to match the amount with money and complete all transactions by the 31 December 1994. This means that if for example you have a trade voucher valued at £25.00 you would need to spend another £25.00 and then select comics to the value of £50.00.
Please contact Tony or George in the Mail order department or Peter in the retail store if you wish further information.

For those of you in the Midlands area, you will be pleased to know that JANE COATES our regional Manager has joined the team at Barnet and will be happy to hear from you, if you don't hear from her first!
All you disappointed Marble Arch and Oxford Street customers need worry no longer as ALEX (the man) ALEXANDER and JOHN BRAMSON are at Barnet and look forward to hearing from you.

The next twelve months should be exciting and Stateside Comics will be here with NEW AND UNUSUAL EVENTS, SIGNINGS, SALES and other plans too numerous to mention.

As always, Stateside Comics is and always will be, The home of the American comic book.
* Discount plans can not be used in conjunction with any other current offers, with the exception of preferred reader discounts.

ORDERING INSTRUCTIONS

1 The prices in this listing supersede all previous catalogues and lists, and are before discount.

2 All orders must be prepaid in sterling. The minimum order including postage is £5. All cheques and postal orders are to be made payable to STATESIDE COMICS, and must have your name and address written on the reverse. Alternatively, you may pay by credit card on our 24 hour orderline:- 081 449 5535. Cash must be sent by registered post.

3 Postage rates are as follows:

⇒ 50p for the first comic, then add 15p for each additional comic to a maximum value of £6.00.

⇒ Add 60p for recorded delivery. (not applicable on foreign orders).

⇒ Graphic novels, T-shirts, Tradepaperbacks add £1 each.

4 All comics are shipped in comic bags. Back issues sold to Preferred Readers Club Members are sent with a backing board.

5 Alternatives are only sent when asked for.

6 If you are not absolutely satisfied with any of your order, providing the goods are returned to us within 14 days in the same condition as sent, then Stateside Comics offers a full refund. This service is extended to 21 days for Preferred Readers Clubs members.

7 All orders are dispatched within 72 hours from receipt of your order.

8 Only the Directors of Stateside Comics have the authority to vary the above.

9 When completing the orderform please be sure to include all relevant sections, and ensure that the item descriptions are as they appear in the listing.

10 Please be aware that phone reservations are not 100% guaranteed as items may sell simultaneously at one of Stateside's retail outlets. In such cases we will endevour to provide replacements, but this is often not possible.

STANDING ORDER AND SUBSCRIPTION SERVICE

STANDING ORDER

AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT PLACE A STANDING ORDER

"Sorry, we've just sold the last copy."

These are the words you'll never have to hear if you place a standing order with Stateside Comics. Ongoing series, limited series, special, annual. Whatever you order, they will be waiting for you. If you want to make a change to your standing order, it's no problem. You can remove a title from your order, starting from the very next issue. You can also add titles to your order and in many cases we can supply you with the last few issues as well as the current one, often at import prices.

All that is required to start your Standing Order is an initial £10.00 deposit (£5.00 if under 16) which is returnable should you wish to cancel your order. Preferred Readers and Import Club members need not pay a deposit.

As an aid to ordering you will receive a free copy of Stateside News every month. As is explained below, you can use the orderform at the back of this publication to place your standing order for your convenience.

If your collecting tastes are more specialised then you can go that one step further and order using PREVIEWS. Previews is a monthly publication from Diamond Distributors which lists over 1,500 items ranging from comics to trading cards to clothing to videos. If there is anything that you notice in Previews that you would like to order but do not find listed on our orderform, do not despair. All you need to do is talk to your standing order administrator at your local store and they place an order for you for any Previews item. On most merchandise there will be a small non-refundable deposit required to be paid to secure your order. If you are going to order any items from Previews, please contact your local store first to confirm the order deadline. This is usually around the 18th of each month, but can sometimes vary, so call in or telephone to be on the safe side.

FOR A COPY OF THE LATEST SUBSCRIPTIONS NEWSLETTER CALL 081 449 5535 ASK FOR DUNCAN OR PAUL

SUBSCRIPTIONS

IF YOU CAN'T GET TO US, WE'LL GET TO YOU

If it's difficult or expensive to our main store, our subscription service will save you time and hassle. We offer two subscription systems. You can use one or both, whichever best suits your needs.

You can place regular orders from our monthly orderform which lists comics and merchandise up to two months in advance. All you need do is complete the ordering details and send the form to our subscription department with payment. We take care of all the paperwork and mail you the comics either weekly or monthly - again please specify your choice. Don't forget that we also place specific orders for items in PREVIEWS but not listed on our Order Form. A specific order must be submitted to us by no later than the 18th of each month.

Alternatively, or in addition, you can set up an annual subscription for any title. As well as getting twelve issues at a fixed price (so regardless of any price increases during the year you wont pay any more), we will also give a thirteenth issue free!

If you want you can collect your comics from our subscription offices in Barnet rather than have them sent. If, like the majority of our customers, you choose to have your comics sent to you, then we offer you either weekly of monthly delivery. If your subscription includes a number of different titles, you can save postage by having monthly deliveries. This means that you will only pay the maximum postage charge, no matter how many comics you receive a month.

STATESIDE COMICS IMPORT CLUB

Whether you buy your comics by subscription or standing order then you should consider membership to the Stateside Comics Import Club. This is the best way to save money if you buy import comics on a regular basis. It gives you an immediate 10% discount on all import comics and new merchandise such as t-shirts, books, graphic novels etc.. Membership costs just £10 per year and works out to around 83p per month. It won't take you long to work out that you only need spend £8.30 per month on comics (that's around £2 per week) to actually receive a discount of 83p and therefore pay for your membership. Anything you spend over the £8.30 means your saving money. Its simple and it works.

IF YOU HAVE ALREADY TELEPHONED YOUR ORDER, PLEASE QUOTE YOUR ORDER NUMBER HERE

PLEASE BE AWARE THAT PHONE RESERVATIONS ARE NOT 100% GUARANTEED AS ITEMS MAY SELL SIMULTANEOUSLY AT ONE OF STATESIDE'S RETAIL OUTLETS. IN SUCH CASES WE WILL ENDEAVOR TO PROVIDE REPLACEMENTS, BUT THIS IS OFTEN NOT POSSIBLE.

Mail Order Protection Scheme

With the increasing audience for buying comics by post, reputable organisations risk suffering because of any unsatisfactory mail order transaction new readers of this magazine may have had elsewhere.

To reassure readers, Comics International has instigated a Mail Order Code of Practice, with participating businesses displaying the above logo in their advertisements, lists and catalogues.

CoBRA Mail Order Protection Scheme Code of Practice

Advertisers:

i Advertisers will state in print their standard despatch period for published goods, which will be within 28 days of receipt of payment.

ii In the event of items having sold out, customers will be offered a full cash refund for these goods.

iii In the event that goods are received by purchaser in unsatisfactory condition due to bad grading or poor wrapping, vendor agrees to provide acceptable replacement copies or full refund including the return postage costs incurred by purchaser.

iv Where required, an independent panel will judge whether goods in question are below advertised standards of grading.

v Where a PO Box address and trading name (other than limited company or PLC) is used by advertiser, the true name of business name (as appropriate) of the advertiser together with full address and telephone number must be submitted to Comics International with advertising copy, or the advertisement will not be accepted.

vi Vendor vouches that all goods detailed in advertisements, lists and catalogues which carry the CoBRA MOPS seal are graded as accurately as possible and no defect is intentionally overlooked.

vii Any mail order organisation subsequently failing, under investigation, to abide by this code understands upon joining that its name will be published as no longer connected with the CoBRA Mail Order Code of Practice scheme.

CUSTOMERS:

i In the event that goods ordered and paid for are not received within the advertiser's published fulfilment period, customer will notify advertiser in writing that goods have not been received and that unless a satisfactory response in writing is forthcoming, they will pursue their claim through CoBRA within 7 days.

ii It is recommended that mail order buyers should always retain dated copies of all correspondence and payment records, in the event of any query, and that customers contacting the CoBRA MOPS (Mail Order Protection Scheme) send additional copies of any relevant correspondence with their letters.

iii Customers are reminded that a standard of 28 days fulfilment is the accepted norm to allow for any outside delays in the mail routing of customers letter, together with banking time for clearance of payment and/or delays in transit for goods supplied. Collectively, these factors can add 15 days to fulfilment time.

iv Customers are also reminded that many mail order businesses do not have sufficient staff to allow for fulfilment of orders during vacations or stock-purchasing visits overseas, but vendors should notify customers of such occasions.

v When paying for a list or catalogue, customers are reminded that a delay may occur when vendor is either preparing a new list or catalogue, or when current one is considered too dated to be of benefit to would-be purchaser. Vendor guarantees that new list or catalogue will be sent upon completion, which will be within 2 months of advertisement being published.

vi CoBRA cannot adjudicate over well-protected goods damaged by postal authorities, but a claim can be made by both vendor and purchaser against the assigned carrier.

Mail Order Retailers: If you agree to abide by the above conditions and wish to add a CoBRA MOPS symbol to your advertisements and catalogues, please submit your trading name and address with full name, personal address and telephone number of your business's proprietor with a first year annual subscription fee of £5.00 to cover administration costs (made payable to Comics International, CoBRA account) to:

CoBRA c/o COMICS INTERNATIONAL
8 Trinity Road, London N2 8JJ

The CoBRA MOPS agreement abides by the Advertising Standards Authority's Code of Mail Order Advertising Practice
